ARRANGEMENT.

The arrangement followed in this work is that recommended by Mr. John Ward Dean and used in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register.

Each head of a family receives a number when first mentioned. The families of Henry Kembal<sup>1</sup> of Watertown, and Richard<sup>1</sup> of Ipswich, are numbered independently. Independent numbers are given to several families who are mentioned in the last chapter of the work.

Taking as an illustration, the family of Richard<sup>1</sup>: He had eleven children, who are numbered i. to xi. Henry<sup>2</sup>, the oldest son, has the number "2" before his name. Richard<sup>2</sup>, the next son, has the number "3" before his name. John is number "4", Thomas<sup>2</sup> is number "5", Benjamin<sup>2</sup> is number "6", and Caleb<sup>2</sup> is number "7". Turning to the next generation we find the first name under it is Henry Kimball<sup>2</sup>, the head of a family, with the figure "2" before his name. The next family in this generation is that of Richard Kimball<sup>2</sup>, who has the figure "3" before his name, and so on with the rest of this generation. Looking now at the children of Henry Kembal<sup>2</sup> we find that John<sup>3</sup>, of the third generation, has the figure "8" before his name, and turning to the third generation we find the first name there is John Kimball<sup>3</sup>, who has the number "8" before his name. The small figures at the right of and above the name serve to show the generation to which the person belongs, counting the immigrant ancestor as one.

Names which do not have Arabic figures before them are not carried into the next generation. The only abbreviations used in this work, except for the states, are: b., born; d., died; m., married; res., resided; and dau., daughter. The places of birth of children are not given when their parents have resided continuously in one town. In cases where the parents have moved from one town to another, the place of birth and residence of the children has been given as far as possible. When the residences of the children are not given, they are, so far as known, the same as that of the parents.

EARLY MIGRATIONS OF THE KIMBALLS.

The descendants of Henry Kimball remained in Watertown and Waltham, Mass., and that vicinity, until after 1800; since that time some of them have settled in New Hampshire.

The principal settlements of the descendants of Richard Kimball have been as follows:

Henry<sup>2</sup> remained for some time after his marriage in Watertown, Mass. He then removed to Ipswich, but finally settled in Wenham, Mass. He had three sons who left descendants. Henry<sup>3</sup> went to Haverhill, Mass. He left no descendants of the name. John<sup>3</sup> went first to Newbury, Mass., and then to Amesbury. His descendants are numerous; they went to New Hampshire and Maine. In late years, some of them have returned to the vicinity of Boston, Mass. Joseph<sup>3</sup> went to Preston, Conn.; his descendants lived there for two or three generations, and then some of them went to Plainfield, N. H. Richard Kimball<sup>2</sup> early settled in Wenham, and his descendants are still to be found in that town. One branch of this family went to Exeter, N. H., and another to Dover, N. H. One of his grandchildren, Ebenezer, went to Hopkinton, Mass. His descendants are very widely scattered; many of them are to be found in New York state and further west. Some still reside in Massachusetts.

John Kimball<sup>3</sup> went to Ipswich, Mass., with his father. His descendants are still in that town. One of his grandsons went to Norwich, Conn., and another to Stonington, Conn. They both left large families, and many of the Connecticut Kimballs are descended from them. Another descendant went to Buxton, Me. Still others went to Rhode Island, and most of the Rhode Island Kimballs belong to this branch.

Thomas Kimball<sup>2</sup> early settled in the part of Bradford now known as Groveland. His descendants have been numerous in that part of the town. One branch of this family emigrated to the vicinity of Fitchburg, Mass. Another went to Fryeburg, Me., and still another to Bridgton, Me. The descendants of Thomas Kimball have been prominent in public affairs.

Benjamin Kimball<sup>2</sup> went to Bradford to live near his wife's father; his family was thrifty and multiplied exceedingly, and occupied the land, until at one time it was said that every one in Bradford was named Kimball except one man, and his name was Kimball Farrar. Benjamin's descendants followed the Merrimack river northward, and they are the most numerous of the Kimballs in the Merrimack valley. Of late years, many of them have gone West.

Caleb Kimball<sup>2</sup> settled in Ipswich, and his descendants have been numerous in that part of Essex county. One of his grandsons went to Newbury, Mass.; his descendants settled in Sanbornton, N. H.

NOTICE.

In making our investigations for this work, it has been our rule to take everything we could find on the records. In this way, we have accumulated much more material than we could use. This material has all been carefully preserved. It has been found that in many instances dates differ on different records. We have done the best we could with our material; but, doubtless, errors will be found in the work. Any person discovering such errors, or wishing to make inquiries about Kimballs who are not recorded in the work, will please communicate with S. P. Sharples, 13 Broad St., Boston.

GENERAL INTRODUCTION.

In 1880, when the "History of the Morison or Morrison Family" was published, the thought came that it would be well for me to prepare a history of the Kimballs, as I had of the Morrisons. My mother being a Kimball, it was my great desire to know the history of her ancestors and to place such a history in permanent form. A memorial like this would be much more permanent than a granite shaft, and would be a reminder of them to their descendants in the present and in all the generations of the future. Since that time I have been diligently collecting information. It has been a most prolific race; its branches extend in all directions and its members have become as numerous as the leaves. To trace them out and to gather in their separate histories was like gathering in and numbering the autumnal forest leaves.

The Kimballs have long been plentiful in Ipswich, Mass., the old nesting ground, and from there they have spread to all parts of New England, and New York; many are in the great West, a few in the South, and some have gone to the Dominion of Canada. Nearly every section of the North American continent has its representatives of this Puritan stock.

Some of the name remained in England when the Kemballs emigrated to these shores in 1634. The family has never been numerous there, and is almost unknown outside of the parent county of Suffolk.

It was my intention to write only a history of the descendants of Benjamin Kimball<sup>2</sup>, son of Richard<sup>1</sup>, the Emigrant, my mother's branch of the family. It was found that in order to do this, much material relating to other branches must be collected. It was thought best to utilize this material. And by the advice and desire of members of the family, I was induced to undertake the history of all the Kimballs in America. The task expanded, and soon assumed enormous proportions. Richard Kimball<sup>1</sup>, with his eleven children, made a large family; all his children married except one, and she may have married. For more than three hundred years, they have obeyed literally the injunction "to multiply and replenish the earth." The tree thrrove after it was transplanted. The material for the history for two hundred years was very scant. It was buried in court and town records or had to be gathered from the dim traditions of the past. Much of this information was collected before scarce a living representative of the race was reached. The family for two hundred years had lived in New England and left hardly a fragment of their history behind them save that recorded on the tombstones and the town books. Men had fought through the wars of the country from the affray at Bloody Brook, where Caleb Kimball was killed, down to the War of the Rebellion, where on many a hard-fought field the Kimballs were to be found. Information in regard to the last three generations, and especially in regard to the present one, was more easy, or should have been more easy, to procure. It was sought to obtain this from the public records and by correspondence with living members of the family.

In the midst of this wearisome and seemingly unending task, it was my good fortune to learn that Professor Stephen Paschall Sharples of Cambridge, Mass., whose wife is a descendant of Benjamin Kimball<sup>2</sup>, was collecting and arranging information in regard to the family.

After some correspondence, we decided that we could do better work together than separately. Thus we became co-workers and co-editors. The field was abundantly large for our united efforts, and by this co-operation, a better, more thorough and accurate work has been produced than either of us could have prepared alone.

Genealogists and historians are born and not made. Professor Sharples, with his powerful natural bent in that direction, with his quick, strong, retentive memory, by his long training as an expert in another line, by his nearness to many public records, and by his business carrying him to all parts of New England, and by his access to many public records, original documents, and sources of information not readily accessible to me, was able to correct many errors in the accounts already published, to detect some in our manuscripts, and to verify much work already done. This labor he pursued to such a remarkable extent that this record is believed to be as nearly perfect as it is possible to make it.

Together we had collected a vast amount of facts, statistics, and material for biographies. Professor Sharples had taken charge of this so far as arranging it in genealogical order. In 1893, I made a copy of the work, wrote and inserted the biographical matter in the proper places, and prepared the manuscript for the printer. But for various reasons, the work was delayed. We still kept collecting material. New avenues opened before us, missing branches were discovered, and still more important, many missing links were found. In some instances, the identification of a single ancestor added over a hundred names to the record. So much additional matter was collected that it became evident that the entire work would have to be re-written in order to introduce in the appropriate places the new genealogical matter and the personal sketches and biographies that had come to hand. As I was on the point of beginning this task, a severe illness placed all work of the kind out of my power. The work therefore had to be completed by Professor Sharples. He is busily engaged in his professional duties, but for the past two years he has given all the time that he could to the work, spending on it an average of five hours a day, arranging the material already procured, writing many new biographical sketches, investigating doubtful points, and making a type-written copy for the printer.

CHARACTERISTICS OF THE FAMILY.

In so long a study of a family, one cannot fail to observe those salient characteristics, mental and physical, which appear in successive generations. The same looks and physical build often present themselves in different branches very far removed in kinship. They often possess the same pronounced and peculiar qualities of mind. Many of the stock have been noted for their powerful and retentive memories. A public speech heard, a sermon listened to, the proceedings of a convention attended, would so powerfully impress themselves upon their minds that, years after, the words of the speaker would be recalled, the text of the preacher given, the substance of the discourse presented, the names of the leading men who had attended the convention mentioned, and the proceedings rehearsed.

As a family, it has not been distinguished for men who were leaders in thought. Not many of its members have been noted in the great political world or in professional or literary work, but they have figured more largely in the common walks of life. They have been looked upon in the communities where they have lived as reliable men and women, and, commencing with Richard<sup>1</sup> and his sons, they have frequently been placed in positions of trust in the town and church government in the places where they resided. In business circles, they have been exceptionally strong. They have loved the activities and excitements of commercial life and have very generally been successful as business men. They have been money-getters and money-keepers, and while until recent times not many of them have been rich, they have generally been in comfortable circumstances. Now, many of the name are wealthy.

Richard Kimball<sup>1</sup> was a wheelwright in England, as many Kemboulds before him had been, and in every generation of his descendants, we find numbers following the same occupation. Even at the present time, some members of the family are largely interested in the business.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.

We have been greatly helped in the publication of the book by a large subscription for copies made by the late William S. Kimball of Rochester, N. Y.

To Hon. John Kimball of Concord, N. H., Col. Robert J. Kimball of New York and Randolph, Vt., W. W. Kimball of Chicago, Ill., Capt. F. M. Kimball of Topeka, Kansas, and to Roy T. Kimball, Esq., of San Francisco, Cal., we are under obligations for a liberal patronage for copies, and for historical matter furnished us. To Major-General John Shaw Kimball of Fairseat, Wrotham, Seven Oaks, Co. of Kent, England, and his brother, Charles G. Kimball, of Cranley Gardens, South Kensington, London, England, and the late Lewis Kimball of Nashua, N. H., and many others, our thanks are due for interesting and valuable information. To George H. Kimball of Cleveland, Ohio, Harry P. Hammond of Concord N. H., and especially to Miss Sarah Louise Kimball of Oakland, California, and to Thomas D. Kimball of St. Louis, we wish to return our thanks for aid and assistance in preparing this history. We are particularly grateful to Perley Derby and Alfred Poor, of Salem, Mass., for the use of their valuable manuscripts, placed at our disposal. And to all who have in any way helped us in any manner in this unremunerative task, our thanks are rendered. Without their aid, the undertaking would have been almost impossible. To those who have furnished engravings of themselves and others, we, with those of the present and future generations, will be grateful.

This "History of the Kimball Family" greatly exceeds in size and amount of research the work we expected to prepare when we commenced it.

The task is now finished, and we offer the work, as a memorial, to the members of the family, who may therein find how their ancestors have assisted in building up this country. To historians, it will be interesting as showing the wanderings of the descendants of the early settlers of Massachusetts Bay, and it may serve to assist local recorders in determining the origin of a portion of their population.

SUPPLEMENTARY INTRODUCTION.

My friend Morrison wishes me to say a few words in relation to my part of the present work. Brought up among the Friends of Southern Pennsylvania, one of the earliest maxims instilled into my mind was never to be idle, never to waste time that could be usefully employed. Some years ago, I was appointed by the Governor of Massachusetts, Assayer of Liquors for the Commonwealth. This office involved much waiting around the courts. I soon found that there was a rich mine of genealogical matter hidden away in the old records at Salem, Mass. A casual remark dropped at a Thanksgiving dinner by some one of my father-in-law's family, "that they knew nothing of their ancestors, except that they thought that they came from somewhere in New Hampshire or Massachusetts," gave me something to work upon. I began by trying, with aid of the documents on file at Salem and some town histories, to see if I could find out anything in regard to the New England ancestors of my children. After a year's work at such odd times as would have been otherwise wasted, I was able to say that I could trace every one of their ancestors back to 1720, and most of them back to 1630. In doing this I had accumulated considerable material. Perley Derby of Salem, Mass., seeing that I was interested in the matter, placed in my hands a lot of material that he had collected with regard to the Kimball family, with the remark that I might have it. It was an almost hopeless task to straighten it out. He had already used part of it in the preparation of a memorial of James Kimball. I found on examination of this mass of material, that I had the foundation for some work, and as an exercise in genealogical work, I tried to see what I could do with it. Shortly after this, Alfred Poor of Salem, Mass., placed at my disposal a number of notes he had made in regard to the Kimballs of Bradford, Haverhill, and Groveland, Mass., and also some relating to the Kimballs of southern New Hampshire. These I found of great value.

They were made between 1850 and 1860. Mr. Poor made several genealogical trips and interviewed every person whom he thought could give him any information. The material thus collected is still in a great measure undigested. It is a mine of wealth to those who wish to explore the families of the region mentioned. I have visited personally every probate office in eastern Massachusetts; I have either visited or caused to be visited every probate office in New Hampshire, and have had abstracts of all the wills found therein made, so that I could trace as far as possible the movements of the family. I have also visited all the town records in Essex county, with one or two exceptions, and in these cases I have had the records examined. All this has involved several thousand letters and nearly ten years of work. Kimballs have been written to in all parts of the country, but I am sorry to say that I cannot commend the family as good letter-writers. It is not their habit to write a letter to-day that can be put off till to-morrow. Still there have been notable exceptions to this, and I have had many pleasant letters from members of the family in the course of the work. I have done my best to have the genealogical matter of this work correct, but I am conscious that there are still many errors in it. In some cases, we are still in the dark. While I think every one who looks into the matter will be convinced that the Kimballs of York county, Me., are descendants of Richard Kimball<sup>1</sup> of Ipswich, so far I have been unable to prove this, but the traditions are that they came from Ipswich, and the given names are the same.

While at times the task has been a weary one, on the whole it has been pleasant, and I return my thanks to many members of the family who have assisted me. I wish also to acknowledge my indebtedness to the many town histories which I have consulted and to the published genealogies that have been used in the work.

CHAPTER I.

THE KEMBALLS OF ENGLAND—THE EARLY HOME OF THE KEMBALLS IS FOUND—VISIT TO HITCHAM AND BUXHALL—GEN. KEMBALL OF ENGLAND—LETTER OF CHARLES GORDON KEMBALL—CHANGE OF ORTHOGRAPHY—EXTRACTS FROM ENGLISH WILLS—RECORDS OF HITCHAM, ENGLAND—EARLY ORTHOGRAPHY OF THE NAME—KEMBALL AND KEMBLE, DIFFERENT NAMES—THE ARMS.

Previous to 1889 all that was known in regard to the Kemballs who came to this country, was, that they came from Ipswich, England, in the ship Elizabeth, William Andrews, master. In the list of passengers by this ship, we find the names of Henry and Richard Kemball, who have been supposed to be brothers, because they came over on the same ship and settled in the town of Watertown. There is no evidence that they were so related. They did not settle in the same part of Watertown, but three miles apart. Matters were in this state in 1889 when Mr. Morrison resolved to make a trip to England and Europe. During this trip he obtained positive evidence in regard to the parish from which Richard Kemball<sup>1</sup>, his wife, Ursula Scott, and his brother-in-law, Thomas Scott, came. The way that he obtained possession of this evidence, is perhaps best explained by the following letter, received from him in answer to some inquiries which I made of him regarding the home of the Kemballs:

To Stephen P. Sharples:

DEAR SIR: In accordance with the design formed by me, when I left America, I made arrangements while in London to visit Ipswich, in Suffolk county, and to see if I could find any clues which would enable me to trace to the home parish the ancestor of the Kimballs of America. While making researches and during frequent visits to Somerset House, in London, I met Henry F. Waters, the accredited agent of the New England Historic Genealogical Society of Boston, Mass., who has made many researches and valuable historical discoveries in old England relating to New England families. He told me that he had made some investigations in the public records in Suffolk county, and had found frequent mention of the Kemballs who lived in several parishes in the vicinity of Bury St. Edmunds. The scraps of information which he had about them he placed at my disposal. Chief among these was the will of Henry Scott of Rattlesden. This will proved beyond a doubt that Richard Kemball<sup>1</sup> married Ursula Scott, and showed that Henry Scott lived in the parish of Rattlesden. Mr. Waters was strongly of the opinion that Rattlesden might also prove to be the home of Richard Kemball<sup>1</sup>, who came to America in 1634, but of this he had no absolute proof. Going to Ipswich, I consulted the records in the District Register's office, and found that the Kemballs had lived for some hundreds of years in Rattlesden, Buxhall, Hitcham, and other parishes to the south of Bury St. Edmunds. Among the recent records were found the wills of Richard and Henry Kemball of Bury St. Edmunds.

THE EARLY HOME OF THE KEMBALLS IS FOUND.

At Bury St. Edmunds, I also examined the records. Enough was found to convince me that Rattlesden was an important place which should be visited. I proceeded to Stowe Market, and from there was conveyed to Rattlesden, five miles away. Late on a sunny afternoon I reached that quaint little hamlet and called at the rectory to see the rector of the parish, Rev. Mr. Barney, since deceased, who was custodian of the records, which extended back to 1558. I made arrangements with him to consult the records the next morning. The rectory is pleasantly situated amid the old trees of the glebe. The church stands near the rectory, is a good looking edifice of stone, and seems to be a modern structure. From there I wandered into the village of Rattlesden. It is a small, straggling hamlet, pleasantly situated in a gently sloping valley. The roofs of many of the houses are covered with tiles. It is in an agricultural district, and the fields on the sloping sides of the surrounding hills look productive and pleasant.

There is no hotel in the village, and I was a guest at what is called a "Public," known as "The Five Bells," kept by a Mrs. Moore. It was the only place of entertainment. In the evening the village schoolmaster, a soldier who had served in the Crimea and in India, and other dignitaries of the village congregated in the small sitting-room, seated themselves on the wooden benches around the table, where they smoked, told stories, discussed politics, and drank their whiskey or ale, after the manner of Tam O'Shanter and his cronies, in the manner that has probably been followed for hundreds of years. It was a new phase of life to me, and a very entertaining one, giving as it did a glimpse at old English customs. Promptly at ten o'clock the house was closed and the guests of the evening repaired to their several homes.

My slumbers in the parish of my forefathers were sweet and refreshing. In the morning I went again to the rectory, to study the ancient records, and examine them from 1558 to 1660. I found the baptism of Henry<sup>2</sup>, son of Richard and Ursula Kemball<sup>1</sup>, as follows: "Henry Kemball ye Sonne of Richard and Ursula his wife baptized xii, Aug. 1615." There were many other evidences of the connection of the Kemballs with this place. After a close examination of the records, I bade the very eccentric old rector farewell, and started for Hitcham. We passed up a steep hill out of the village. The highway led through tall hedges till we reached the summit, a broad plateau, from which there was a good prospect of the surrounding country. Large fields were enclosed by high hawthorne hedges. Numerous tall trees showed the division lines between different owners. The country was pleasing to the eye. It was the harvest season, and from the hill overlooking Rattlesden, with its church, its straggling houses with their roofs of tile and thatch, we could view the country around, with its fields of ripening grain and broad expanses of clover in full bloom, which undulated in the breezes and filled the air with its aroma.

Through scenes like this, over a smooth, hard road, winding among and over the hills, I rode to Hitcham. A few days before I arrived at this place, Thomas Kemball, an aged citizen of Hitcham, had died. Going to the rectory I had the pleasure of meeting the very genial and courteous rector, Rev. A. R. Grant. He placed his parish records at my disposal, showed me every attention, and rendered me all the personal assistance possible. It gives me pleasure to here acknowledge my grateful appreciation of his kindness. In these records I found abundant evidence that the Kemballs had long been residents of the place. It was an old hive of the family. The next place I visited was Buxhall, where the Rev. Mr. Hill was rector; he very kindly placed the parish books at my disposal. I examined the records but found nothing of importance. Few of the Kemballs had lived there.

After returning to London, by correspondence I made the acquaintance of Major-Gen. J. S. Kemball of the British army.* His residence is Fairseat, Wrotham, Seven Oaks, County of Kent, England. I afterwards had an interesting correspondence with him on my return to the United States. He had recently hunted up the ancestry of his family, and had traced it to Hitcham. He had the Hitcham and other records copied, and he sent them to me after my return to this country. His brother, Charles Gurdon Kemball, sent with these records an interesting letter, which I enclose.

*The Kimballs lived chiefly in the southwest of Suffolk county, and the old parish registers and the churchyards of the parishes of Rattlesden, Hitcham, Groton, Boxford, Bildeston, and Felsham are full of the names of Kemballs.

The William Kemball born in 1623, mentioned in the following letter, was a lad eleven years of age when Richard Kemball<sup>1</sup> left Rattlesden and emigrated to America.

Respectfully yours,

LEONARD A. MORRISON.

Leonard A. Morrison, Esq.:

MY DEAR SIR: I have at last succeeded in getting most of the papers out of the Heralds College, and those that I have I have had copied on their paper and now send you, without waiting for the remainder, which from my past experience of the Heralds College, I fear I may not get for some time. I am afraid that the copies I am enclosing may not prove of much use, but probably they will be interesting reading to you. What the remaining papers are which the College promised to return later on I do not know, but if I find that they may be of interest to you I will send copies also of them. You will see that our family name is variously spelt, apparently “according to the taste and fancy of the speller,” as Sam Weller would have said. I think that the original name was undoubtedly “Kymbolde.” I don’t know whether you have a map of Suffolk by you; if not you may be interested in hunting up the different villages and towns named, and I therefore enclose one. Apparently our family lived exclusively in the west of the county, inclining more to the south than the north. We, i. e., my two brothers and I, have been concerned simply with our own pedigree, and have been content to commence with a great-great-great-grandfather, William Kemball, who was born in 1623, who was the father of William Kemball of Hitcham who died in 1702, leaving a son, Rev. William Kemball of Brandon, a curate of Dowerham, in the N. W. of Suffolk. The latter had thirty-two children, of whom my grandfather, Vero Kemball, of Hitcham, was the youngest. This Vero married Letitia Philippa Gurdon, daughter of the rector of Apington, in the S. W. of the county. At my brother General Kemball’s request I enclose you his photograph for your acceptance. I am afraid I have not afforded you much useful information, but if there is anything I can, in your opinion, do for you, I am at your service. I am, Dear Sir,

Yours very truly,

C. G. KEMBALL.”

CHANGE OF ORTHOGRAPHY.

With this letter were a number of abstracts of wills, registers of birth, death and marriage. Only a few of these will be given, only enough being quoted to show the changes that the name underwent in England before the family came to this country. Since coming to this country the descendants of Richard Kemball<sup>1</sup> have very generally changed the spelling of the name by substituting "i" for "e", and "Kemball" has become "Kimball"; this change took place very soon after they emigrated. On the other hand, the descendants of Henry Kemball, until the beginning of this century, always spelled the name Kemball.

EXTRACTS OF ENGLISH WILLS.

The first will to be quoted is that of "Henry Kymbolde", dated 16 Aug. 1524:—

"I Henry Kymbolde the younger of Hecham in the Countye of Suff." "to be buried in the Churchyard of Hecham." "To John Kymbolde my sonne one of my bullocke" "to Margaret Kymbolde my Doughter another bullocke" Residue of Goods to "Agnes myne Wyff". "Annes Kymbolde my wyff and Thomas Kymbold the elder my ffather of Hecham" "Ext<sup>x</sup> & Ex<sup>or</sup>" proved March 14, 1523-4.

In the second will we have the name of Richard Kymbolde appearing. The Henry of this will may have been the uncle of Henry of the first will:—

6 July 1526 "I Henry Kymbolde of Hecham in ye Countye of Suff" "I wyll that Rychard Kymbolde my sonne" shall have my house that I dwell in called Brakys" Also "My tenement called Warrens". Mentions Thomas Kymbolde his sonne, "Peter Kymbolde his son." "Elizabeth, his youngest daughter. "Wyll that Henry Kymbolde to have my tenement called Pokellys with a crofte, called "Halles croft", and another croft called "Swymer field". Mentions Maryon his wyff, daughter Agnes Lookwood daughter Elizabeth Bantofte, Henry Bantofte his godson, Esall Lokwood "my goddoughter" Thomas Bendyche my godsonne" Anne Bendyche my Doughter" "Robert Rowsse my godsonne" "myne wyff, Richard Kymbolde my sonne and Leonard Lokwood Ex<sup>tr</sup> & Ex<sup>ors</sup>" Robert Rowss of Hadley Supervisor. Witnesses Henry Todd, Thomas Bantofte Thomas Wettm and Geoffrey Tamnat.

On Jan. 4, 1558, Henry Kembold of Hechm Leaves to his wife the tenement that he dwells in called "Pogelles". This Henry is evidently the son of Henry mentioned above. But he spells his name "Kem" instead of "Kym". The spelling of "Pokelles" is also changed. He also mentions "Halls Crofte" and "Swynesfield" which he gives to "Harrye Kembolde his son. To Thomas Kembolde his son he gives a piece of land in "Rattlesden" called "Hodges Medowe". He also leaves property to his son Richard Kimball, mentions his daughters Agnes and Margaret. He gives to Henry and Thomas all my "Toles and tymbar" "My horse myll with all that do belonge to it to Herrye Kembold my son after my wyffes decease".

His wife "Cicelie Kembolde of Hitcham wedowe" made a will which was proved, Dec, 8, 1582, in this she mentions her three sons Henry Thomas and Richard. She mentions Priscilla Kembolde daughter of Henry Kembolde. She calls her daughter Margaret Pricke.

The last will that I shall quote is that of Richard Kembolde the elder of Hitcham. This is interesting on account of the very full list of his descendants. He was the brother of Henry Kembolde, whose will was made in 1558, and son of Henry whose will was made in 1626. His wife was Agnes, and he wills as follows:—

"To my eldest sonne Henrye Kembolde £10." "to my grand Children Thomas Kembolde and Henrye Kembolde my said sonne Henries two sonnes 40s/ each and to Ellen Kembolde and Elizabeth Tarvar the two daughters of the said Henrye my eldest sonne 20s/—each" "to the eldest childe of the saide Elizabeth Tarvar 20s/ when 21. "to Edmunde Kembolde my sonne £5. to enye of the children of the saide Edmunde my sonne 40s/ when 21, To Adam Ransone of Monkeselye" "to enye one of the children of the saide Adam Ransone 40s/ when 21. "To Richard Ransone, Thomas Ransone, and John Ransone brethren of the afore named Adam Ransone £3. and to Wittm Ransone ther brother 40s/" "Unto my daughter Marrion Harper the mother of the above named Ransons 20s/" "to Elenor Kilham my daughter 40s" "to my godsonne Richarde Kilham, her sonne 40s/ when 21. "to Alice Clinche her daughter and to her eldest sonne Wittm Clinche 40s/ apiece. To my grande childe Steven Kembolde of Bildestone £5. "to Agnes Hart my daughter of Monkselye £5. "to John Hart and Thomas Hart sonnes of my aforesaide Daughter Agnes Hart £3. apiece.

To my Daughter Brame of Chelesworth 40s/ and to her dawghter Alice Brame 40s/" "to my dawghter Elizabeth Webbe of Nawton 10s / and a load of wood a year for life." to her sonne Robte Webb. £5. to her sonne Thomas Webb £5. to Nicholas Webbe my Daughters thirde sonne 20 Noble when 21. "to Rachell Webbe, Margaret Webbe and Janne her three Daughters £5 apiece. they under 21, unto Joane Webbe and Elizabeth Webbe £4 apiece "40s/ to be bestowed upon my daughter Haynes. to enye one of my saide Dawghter Haynes her children £3 apiece when 21.

In these wills the constant repetition of the names Henry, Richard, and Thomas is particularly to be noticed. Peter Kembolde of Bury St. Edmund, brother to the above Richard, leaves his property to Henry Kembold of Brettenham, his nephew, to Marion Ransonne, the daughter of Richard Kembold, and to Peter, the son of Edmonde Kembolde, and others.

RECORDS OF HITCHAM, ENGLAND—EARLY ORTHOGRAPHY OF THE NAME.

Turning now to the baptisms in Hitcham we will select from the long list a few to show the spelling of the name:—

- 1583 April 14. Petrus Kembould filius Edmunde Kemb.
- 1606 May 4 Stephanus Kembould filius Petri Kembolde.
- 1609 May 7 Rosa Kimbold filia Petri Kimbold.
- 1611 May 19, Adamus Kembolde filius Petri Kembolde.
- 1613-14 Feb. 20. Dorathea Kembolde filia Petri Kembolde.
- 1615-16 Richardus Kembolde filius Petri Kembolde.
- 1617 May 11, Johana Kembolde filia Petri Kembolde.

1617 Nov. 5. Abigala Kembold filia Richardi Kembolde.

1617-18 Johannis Kembolde filius Petri Kembolde.

1621 Sept. 2, Abratia Kemball filius Petri Kemball. This is the first entry in which the name has its modern spelling. After this date the spelling is almost uniformly Kemball, although in a few instances the variation Kemboll is found, and as late as 1655 and '57 a few instances of reversion to the original form occur; for instance, in 1657, is the entry, Abigill Kembould daughter of William Kembould, born Dec. 30.

Whether the Abigala Kembold mentioned as born in 1617 was the daughter of Richard, the emigrant, we do not know, but she was of about the right age. We think that, in conclusion, we can safely say that the names of Kemball and Kemble have been distinct names for at least four hundred years and that there is no evidence that they were ever the same. The Kemballs have lived in Suffolk county for at least four hundred years. They have always belonged to the so-called middle class in England. On the other hand, the Kembles have lived in Wiltshire even longer. They have a coat of arms and belong to the nobility. Only one family of Kembles was early in New England, and their descendants have ceased to exist, in the male line. I have made a careful investigation in regard to this family, and their history is given in an appendix to this work. There were two families of Kembles early in New Jersey. About these I have been able to ascertain but little, still I have a few letters from their descendants. They claim to belong to the same family as the celebrated English actors. Peter Kemble was very prominent previous to the Revolution; he was wealthy, was a member of the Governor's Council, and his daughter married General Gage of the British army.

Of late years several of the Kemballs have occupied distinguished positions in the British army. The most distinguished of these is General Sir Arnold Burrowes Kemball, who was born in 1820, son of Arnold Kemball, Esq. For long services in the East he was given the rank of Knight Commander of the Star of India in 1866. He was made a Knight Commander of the Order of the Bath in 1878. He has passed through the various grades in the British army, from Lieutenant in 1837, to that of General.

THE ARMS.

So far as we can ascertain the Kemballs have never had a coat of arms. Several so-called coats of arms have been published in this country. One of these is in existence in Salem, Mass. It is one of the manufactures of the notorious John Coles. Another one which was published in connection with the history of the Joseph Kimball family, by Hon. John Kimball of Concord, N. H., is very nicely printed and certified to. A long search through various works on Heraldry fails to reveal any such coat of arms. We print it, and it is here inserted for what it is worth. If the family choose to adopt it we do not know of any reason why they should not.

The family of Kimball is from the County of Cumberland, England, and takes its origin from a parish of that name upon the Scottish border.

The arms are,—Argent (silver), a lion rampant; gules (red), upon a chief (sable), three crescents of gold. The crest is a lion rampant, holding in the dexter paw a dagger, au propre (natural color).

CHAPTER II.

HENRY KEMBALL<sup>1</sup> OF WATERTOWN, MASS., AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

As Henry Kemball<sup>1</sup> was the oldest of the two emigrants we will give his family first. It is remarkable that while the descendants of Richard Kimball<sup>1</sup> are almost numberless, those of Henry Kemball were represented by a single male in each generation until after the marriage of Henry Kemball<sup>5</sup> and Elizabeth Wellington in 1783. She introduced new vigor into the race. She had five sons, and died at the age of ninety-four.

In writing of Henry Kemball<sup>1</sup> and his descendants we shall retain the original spelling of the name. Henry always signed his name in this way, and his descendants have mainly kept up the practice until within sixty years.

1 Henry Kemball<sup>1</sup>, b. perhaps at Lawford, in the county of Essex, England, son of Richard Kemball of Lawford, wheelwright. Richard's will was proved Sept. 10, 1619. He gives to "my eldest sonne Henry Kemball all my worken Tooles belonginge to my trad Except out of them as many as shall be fittinge for to searue to axe a cart withall." All the rest of his estate he leaves to his wife, Elizabeth, with the condition that as a "mother shee shall see all my children vertiouslye broughte upp, in the feare of God, according to her poore estate and Abilitye." Henry, the emigrant, may have been the Henry mentioned in the above will. This is, however, a matter of conjecture. We do know, however, that at one time he lived in the adjoining parish, for Henry Kemball of Mistley singleman and Susan Cutting widow of the parish of Great Bromley were married Nov. 27, 1628. Susan Cutting was the widow of Richard

Cutting. Richard Cutting and Susan Stone were married Aug. 3, 1620, at Great Bromley. "Richard Cuttunge, the sonne of Richard Cuttunge, was baptized the sixth day of februarye 1621."

Susan Cuttunge, the daughter of Richard Cuttunge and Susan his wife was bap: the xjth of September 1625. The will of Richard Cutting of "Much Bromley" July 27, 1627, mentions his wife Susan and his children Richard and Susan. Richard came with his mother to this country and settled in Watertown, Mass. His descendants are given in Bond's History of Watertown. Henry Kemball died in 1648. His inventory is dated July 22, 1648. His homestead in Watertown was situated near the corner of what are now Belmont and Common streets. He also owned land in other parts of the town.

Henry Kemball's widow, Susan, married for her third husband one Loe or Low. She survived him and died Aug. 19, 1684, aged 86.

At a court appointed 1651, Thomas Straite acknowledged that he had received his wife Elizabeth's share of her father's estate. John Randall also acknowledged that he had received Susanna's share.

In Boud's Watertown three more children are given as belonging to Henry. This careless error is also found in Savage's Dictionary. They were the children of Henry and Mary (Wyatt) Kimball of Wenham, Mass., as shown by the Watertown records. <sup>1</sup>This Henry Kimball<sup>2</sup> was the son of Richard Kimball<sup>1</sup>, and for some time after he was married he lived in Watertown, Mass. After the birth of these three children he moved to Ipswich and then to Wenham, Mass.

CHAPTER III.

RICHARD KIMBALL<sup>1</sup> AND HIS DESCENDANTS—WILL OF HENRY SCOTT—WILL OF RICHARD KIMBALL.

The common ancestor of the great majority of Kimballs in this country was Richard Kimball<sup>1</sup>, who with his family embarked at Ipswich, in the county of Suffolk, England, April 10, 1634, in the ship Elizabeth, William Andrews, master. After braving the dangers of the ocean voyage he arrived in Boston harbor, and from thence went to Watertown, Mass. He had left the comforts and ties and oppressions of old England to find for himself and children a home in the New World. It was to him a land of promise, a land of religious and political liberty, a land to which the longing eyes of the dwellers in old Suffolk were turning as fondly as did the eyes of the ancient Hebrews turn in their captivity to the promised land of Canaan.

As the Israelites passed through the "Wilderness" and through the deep waters of affliction to reach their haven of rest, so these sturdy Puritans, with their families, with undaunted hearts, broke loose from the ties of friendship, left the graves of their forefathers, passed over the wilderness of waters and reached the Canaan of their hopes. An ocean now rolled between them and their early home, and in a new and savage country, and in another hemisphere, they started a new home. They helped to make the beginnings of a New England and lay the foundations of a rival to the Old England across the sea. They were of that Puritan stock which has in its turn made New England the mother of the great West, the sturdy stock which only needs to be convinced that it is right in order to do and dare all that is noblest. A stock that found a wilderness peopled with a few savages, a climate that would have killed a less hardy race, a soil that is far from fertile, and yet out of these untoward circumstances wrested success. They came when the throes of revolution were agitating the mother country, when the conflict between the adherents of the Established Church and the Puritans, between the King and the people, was at its height, and when the principles of civil rights and religious liberty were struggling for existence in England.

James I., after a feeble reign, had expired March 27, 1625. His son, the ill-starred Charles I., had succeeded him. Fires were smouldering in England which would soon burst forth into devouring flames. In 1629 Charles I. dissolved the last of three Parliaments, and for the next eleven years attempted to rule England by his absolute power. In 1634 the king made his journey to Scotland, in order to hold a Parliament, and by a statute compel the Scottish people to worship by Episcopal rule. A very difficult task, which no king, though backed by the power of the church, could accomplish. He made William Laud Archbishop of Canterbury, whose office was an object of aversion to the Puritans. Under his authority every corner of the kingdom was subjected to a minute inspection, and every little band of Separatists or Puritans, as their adversaries called them, was tracked out and broken up, even the religious ceremonies of private families did not escape the vigilance of his spies. Deadly hatred of the Established Church and of the king as its head was thus engendered in thousands of homes.

✦ These acts rendered England so uncomfortable that the Puritans were compelled to seek a home elsewhere. They, therefore, sought a dwelling place in the wilderness of the new world, and they called their new home, in loving remembrance of the old home from which they came, New England. ✦ Here they sought the right to worship God unmolested by bishops. There was but little opposition to the first emigration, but three years later, in 1637, by an order of the king and council, eight vessels lying in the Thames and ready to sail, freighted with Puritans, were detained. In these vessels were embarked Sir Arthur Hazelrig, John Hampden, John Pym, and Oliver Cromwell, the Great Protector, who afterwards signed the death warrant of King Charles, in 1649. Such was the condition of affairs in England, and such the insults, persecutions, and wrongs heaped upon the Puritans in 1634, which the proud spirits of many could not brook, but in the wilds of New England they sought out a home in which they might be free.

The leaders in the exodus were many of them men of influence in England, and they brought with them many men of the middle classes, who were also tired of the tyranny and exactions to which they were subjected. To this class belonged the sturdy wheelwright, Richard Kimball<sup>1</sup>. He had a trade which would be eminently useful in the new colony. His services were in such request that he was soon called to leave his first settlement at Watertown and go to Ipswich, where he was given a house lot, and other privileges, on condition that he should be the town wheelwright.

Richard Kimball<sup>1</sup> came to this country in the ship Elizabeth, William Andrews, master, in 1634. He appears to have gone, soon after landing, to Watertown, Mass. He settled in a different part of the town from that occupied by Henry Kimball<sup>1</sup>. According to Bond and other writers Richard and Henry were brothers. There is but little evidence to support this supposition, and it seems to be mainly founded on the fact that they both came over on the same vessel. Richard is said on the shipping list to be thirty-nine years old, but he was probably somewhat older. He was, however, in the prime of life, and soon became a prominent and active man in the new settlement.

He first settled in Watertown, and his home lot is thus given by Dr. Henry Bond: Richard Kimball, six acres, bounded on the north by Cambridge, east by land of W. Hamlet, south by the highway, and west by land of Edward White.

This lot was situated a long way from the centre of the town. It is now in Cambridge, which many years ago annexed the eastern part of Watertown. The lot was situated near what is now the corner of Huron avenue and Appleton street, and near springs of water.

He was proclaimed freeman in 1635, May 6. Was a proprietor in 1636-7. Soon after this date he was invited to remove to Ipswich, where they were in need of a competent man to act as wheelwright to the new settlement. Here he spent the remainder of his days. The town granted him a house lot, Feb. 23, 1637, next adjoining Goodwin Simons at the west end of the town. He was also granted at the same time "40 acres Beyond the North Riuer, near the land of Robert Scott." In 1639 he had liberty to pasture "two cows free." On "the last day of the last month 1641" he is mentioned as "Among the Commoners of Ipswich." He was appointed one of the seven men March 1, 1645. On the 22d day of the tenth mo. 1647 he was allowed two Pounds for killing two foxes.

His services as wheelwright were appreciated by his townspeople, for he was permitted in January, 1649, "to fell such white Oaks as he hath occasion to use about his trade for the town use."

December 19, 1648, he contributed with others three shillings as his annual proportion towards the sum of £27, 7s, as a rate for the services of their military leader, Major David Denison, then commander of the military forces of Essex and Norfolk counties.

In September, 1652, he was one of the appraisers of the estate of John Cross, one of the earliest settlers of Ipswich.

On the 25, day 11mo 1652, he and his son Richard, Wheelwrights, "for £14. sell 30 acres upland bounding on land of Mr. John Winthrop," also another lot of land of ten acres of "meadow".

In 1653 he was one of a committee of three to survey fences in the common fields north of the river. His brother-in-law Thomas Scott died Feb. 1653-4 and he was joint executor with Edmund Bridges of his will. On May 25, 1654, their official position was recognized by Thomas Scott, Jr., then a resident of Stamford, Conn.

In 1660 he was granted right "to fell 20 white oak trees to make weels for the townsmen their use." In 1664 he owned 43 shares in Plumb Island.

Richard Kimball was of the parish of Rattlesden, county of Suffolk, England, as is shown by the following entry on the parish register :

Henry Kimball ye sonne of Richard and Vrsula his wife baptized 1615, 12 of August.

Ursula was the daughter of Henry Scott of Rattlesden, as appears from the following extract from Henry Scott's will:

"To Abigale Kimball my grandchild twentie shillings to be paid at 21 to Henrie Kimball my grandchild twenty shillings to be paid at 21 to Elizabeth Kimball my grandchild twenty shillings to be paid at 21 to Richard Kimball my grandchild twenty shillings to be paid at 21." He also mentions his wife Martha, and sons Roger and Thomas Scott. Thomas Scott came with his wife and children to this country in the same vessel as Richard and his family, and they brought Martha Scott with them. This will was made 24 Sept. 1625 In the 21st year of James of England by Henry Scott of Rattlesden in the Co. of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich. It was proved in the court of the Arch deacon of Sudbury 10 January 1624-5. As Thomas Scott settled in Ipswich this may have had some influence in causing Richard's removal from Watertown. Henry Scott was buried at Rattlesden, Dec. 24, 1624. (Parish Register.)

Richard Kimball married second, Oct. 23, 1661, Margaret Dow, widow of Henry Dow of Hampton, N. H.

Richard Kimball to the best of yr knowledge and that they know of noe other.

Attest Robert Lord cler.

Moses and Aaron Pengry were prominent citizens of Ipswich. The marriage settlement of Sarah Pengry, daughter of Moses, is on record at Salem, Mass. She married John, son of Robert

Day, and three of her children married three children of Benjamin Kimball<sup>2</sup> of Bradford, Mass.

Having thus made his will he waited for the coming of the messenger who would sunder all earthly ties and take him on his eternal journey. The angel delayed not long his coming. On the twenty-second of the following June the earthly pilgrimage of Richard Kimball ended, and, aged more than eighty years, he joined the great majority.

His wife did not long survive him, but died the succeeding spring, March 1, 1676. Richard Kimball<sup>1</sup> was well to do for those early days. The inventory of his estate, which was taken July 12, 1675, and returned to court Sept. 28, 1675, amounted to £737 3s. 6d. He had already given to his children at their marriages.

CHILDREN.

- i. Abigail<sup>2</sup>, b. Rattlesden, county of Suffolk, England; d. in Salisbury, Mass., June 17, 1658. She married in England John Severans, b. —, d. April 9, 1682, of Salisbury, Mass., who is first styled a planter, afterwards a victualer and vinter. She is not mentioned in the list of passengers, with the others of her father's family, on the Elizabeth. She was in the prime of life at the time of her death. Mr. Severans married, second, Oct. 2, 1663, Susanna, widow of Henry Ambrose. Mr. Ambrose, after having lived in Hampton, N. H., Salisbury, Charlestown, and Boston, died in Boston in 1658.

July 10, 1737, daughter of Thomas<sup>4</sup> and Abigail (French) Eastman, m. Ebenezer Webster and was the mother of Daniel Webster<sup>6</sup>, the statesman.
- 2 ii. Henry Kimball<sup>2</sup>, b. Rattlesden, Suffolk county, England. There seems to be some doubt as to Henry's exact age. It is given on the shipping list as aged fifteen, in 1634. This would give the year of his birth as 1619. But it is evident that the ages on the shipping list are only approximate. Henry himself deposes in court, Sept. 28, 1669, that he is aged 53. This would give the year of his birth as 1616. But the parish records at Rattlesden are as follows: "12, Aug, 1615 Henry Kemball ye sone of Richard and Vrsula his wife baptized."
- iii. Elizabeth Kimball<sup>2</sup>, b. Rattlesden, 1621. There is no record of her marriage. She was alive in 1675.

- v. Mary Kimball<sup>2</sup>, b. Rattlesden, Eng., 1625; m. Robert Dutch of Gloucester and Ipswich, Mass. Mary is wrongly given in many places as the wife of Deacon Thomas Knowlton, historians being misled by her father's will, as he only mentions the first names of his daughters and does not leave anything to the children of Mary. But in an action for trespass against Richard Kimball, Sr., (in taking a heifer by his grandson Robert Dutch of the yard of Obadiah Wood and detaining the same Mar. 1662), this is shown to be wrong, Robert Dutch, Sr.'s wife was Mary. Savage's Dictionary is wrong in regard to her name. It says she was Mary Roper, daughter of Walter Roper. But Mary Roper was born in 1641. Mary Dutch says in a deposition that she is 36 in 1665, which would give her birth as 1629. Samuel Dutch calls Caleb Kimball<sup>2</sup> uncle in deposition in 1664.

- i. John Dutch<sup>3</sup>, b. May 1, 1646; living in 1686.

- iv. Mary Dutch<sup>3</sup>, b. 1652.
- v. Caleb Dutch<sup>3</sup>, b. May 1, 1659.
- vi. Benjamin Dutch<sup>3</sup>, b. Dec. 4, 1665; living in 1686.
- vi. Martha Kimball<sup>2</sup>, b. Rattlesden, Eng., 1629; m. Joseph, son of Phillip and Martha Fowler, who was born in England in 1622, and was killed by the Indians May 19, 1676, near Deerfield, Mass. He came to New England in the ship Mary, with his father, in 1634, and resided in Ipswich, Mass. He sold his father-in-law, Richard Kimball<sup>1</sup>, forty acres of land in 1651.

- iv. Mary Fowler<sup>3</sup>, m. John Breen, Jan. 20, 1673-4.
A history of Martha Kimball's descendants is given in the "Fowler Family," by Matthew A. Stickney of Salem, Mass.

SECOND GENERATION.

2 Henry Kimball<sup>2</sup> (Richard<sup>1</sup>) was born at Rattlesden, in the county of Suffolk, England, in 1615, and came to America in the ship Elizabeth with his father. He married, about 1640, Mary, daughter of John and Mary Wyatt, who came over in the same ship with him. She died in Wenham, Mass., Aug. 12, 1672. He married second, Elizabeth (Gilbert) Rayner, widow of William, son of Thurston Rayner, and daughter of Humphrey and Elizabeth Gilbert. William Rayner died Oct. 26, 1672.

Henry first settled in Watertown, Mass., and remained there after his father moved to Ipswich, but sometime after 1646 he followed his father to that place, and about 1655 he removed to Wenham, Mass., and spent the remainder of his life in that town.

November 8, 1657, he subscribed £3 as minister's rate, one-half in wheat, the other one-half in Indian corn, "at Merchant's price". In 1659 he subscribed £3.05s. one-half in corn, and in 1660-1 he contributed 10s. towards the new meeting house. He was chosen constable Oct. 22, 1669.

Henry gave several depositions in court, among which was one given 4<sup>mo</sup>, 1665, wherein he states "that he never gave Goodman Symonds 5s & 6 pens a day for his boy and his bullockes, nor never did intend itt, and sins the last March Corte he came to me and tould me he would take but five shillings." In 1656 he complained against Thomas Smith of Ipswich on account of Smith's cows destroying his corn about two weeks before general training; the fence was broken down.

Henry deposes in 1669 that he was 53 years old. Henry's inventory was presented to court 16. 4<sup>mo</sup> (June) 1676. Among other items are the following: A house & 12 acres of land wh: was the widows before she married with him £40.00.00. A debt due from his son Caleb late deceased upon the acct. of house and land £25. To the Remainder of a legacy giuen him by his father yett in the executors hand about £40. To Bookes 5s. Total £177.12s. He died in Wenham in 1676. At the time of his father's death the estate was still unsettled, and Richard is directed to divide it among the twelve children of Henry. There was due from his estate to his father's estate, £25, as mentioned in his father's inventory. The total property according to the inventory was £50. Among the assets were 7 weeks' wages due fr. ye contry £12.2s. (Savage wrongly gives the Caleb that was killed at Bloody Brook as the son of Richard. The above notes will serve to show that it was Caleb, the son of Henry, who was killed. Caleb, the son of Richard, had two children born after this date, and did not die until 1682.)

3 Richard Kimball<sup>2</sup> (Richard<sup>1</sup>) was born at Rattlesden, in the county of Suffolk, England, about 1623, and came to America in the ship Elizabeth with his father. He married twice, both his wives having Mary for a given name. It is probable that his second wife was named Mary Gott. His first wife died Sept. 2, 1672. He had eight children that were alive at the time of his death, as is shown by an agreement made between them and his widow. Their names are not given in the agreement. Several depositions of his are on file in the court records at Salem. In September, 1658, he says: "That his Uncle Thomas Scott of Ipswich challenged the upland down to the Marsh and his son after him while I lived on Goodman Shatswell's farm for seven years."

Richard Kimball of Wenham was grand juror in 1661.

Richard was of Topsfield in 1664. He was called a wheelwright and yeoman. He removed to Wenham between the years 1652 and 1656. He was the first settler of the name in Wenham. He settled in the western part of the town, near Ladd's hill. He appears to have been the largest taxpayer among the early settlers, and his descendants have generally been in comfortable circumstances. He was a large land holder, as is shown by numerous transactions recorded in Salem, Mass. On July 6, 1665, he sold to his brother Caleb, for £30, his house with one acre of land about it and six acres in the common field, all included in the bounds of Ipswich.

November 8, 1657, he subscribed £3 as minister's rate, to be paid one half in wheat and one half in Indian corn. The next year he was chosen selectman, in which office he continued, with the exception of three years, till 1674. Dec. 4, 1660, he was on the committee to see about building the new meeting house. The matter was deferred until Aug. 21, 1663, when the committee having at last agreed to build, he was one of the committee to join with the selectmen to put out the contract.

28, 12<sup>mo</sup> (Feb.) 1663, "tis agreed yt there then shall be 200 Akers of land of ye best of our comon Leased to foure men for 1000 years: viz. to Abner Ordway, Thomas Searles, John Edwards & Richard Kemball Jr. They yielding and paying to the town severally for every fifty akers. 5s. for the first year & ten the second yere and 15s the third yere and 20s the fourth yere 30s the fifth yere & 40s the sixth yere & so to pay yerely viz. 40s per yere during the above term. Also all the abouue rent is to be paid yerely for the use of the ministry among us." He was also one of a committee to perfect the line between Bass river and Wenham, and 18, 5<sup>mo</sup>, 1673, was on a committee to establish rates for the cost of building the meeting house, which was voted to be "18 ft. square 18 ft. Stud, to be added to Roberts house."

Richard died in 1676, and a few items taken from his inventory are of interest. The amount of his estate was £986.16s.6d.

Item the dwelling house & 132 acres of land and 17 acres of meadow belonging to it. £370. About 200 acres of land in Rowley Villiage.

Due from Daniel Gott for rent £3. per year during the natural life of Mary the wife of the late Richard Kimball of Wenham. Due from the contry for wages and other debts £2.16s.00.

Samuel Kemball and Thomas Kemball sons of the deceased have power of administration granted, and gave oath to the truth of the inventory 27, 9<sup>mo</sup>. (Nov.) 1676.

Due from his father's executors £35.10s.

yn court held at ypswich the 26 of sept 1676.

Attest Robert Lord Cler.

From the circumstance that he had wages due from the country, as is stated in the inventory, it is probable that he had been engaged in the war with the Indians, and was probably with his nephew, Caleb Kimball, at the time the latter was killed at Bloody Brook.

4 John Kimball<sup>2</sup> (Richard<sup>1</sup>) was born in Rattlesden, county of Suffolk, England, in 1621, and came to America with his father. He settled in Ipswich, Mass., and died there May 6, 1698. In a deposition made in 1666 he says he is 35 years old. In a deposition made in 1684, when he was 53 years old, he and his nephew, Philip Fowler, testify "that Mary wife of Thomas patch, Abigail Bosworth, (probably wife of Haniniel Bosworth, who Richard, Sr., calls cousin in his will), and Elizabeth Spofford were daughters of Thomas Scott Sr." In 1656 he was appointed attorney for Thomas Scott of Stamford, Ct., son of Thomas Scott, Sr., late of Ipswich, and brother-in-law of his father, Richard Kimball, Sr. Thomas Scott's will was approved March 8, 1653-4, and mentions children Thomas, Elizabeth, Abigail, Hannah, Sarah, Mary, and brother Richard Kimball. Thomas Scott, Jr., was in the Indian War, under Capt. Lathrop, when he was killed at Squakeheage (Northfield, Mass.) Sept. 8, 1675.

By trade John Kimball<sup>2</sup> was a wheelwright, but by occupation he seems, like his brothers, to have been also an extensive farmer. He frequently bought and sold land, and there are a number of deeds on record at Salem bearing his name. October 16, 1665, he was appointed one of the executors of the will of Bridget Bradstreet. In her will she mentions her oldest daughter, Martha Kimball. (This is evidently a clerical error, as Martha was the wife of William Beal.) She gives to her "the gound she now hath now in her possession, and my greine hood, a peuter dish, and Mr. Morton's Bocke and on sheet and on peliber (Pillowbear) To my daughter Mary Kimball my ould bible, my cloth waskate, my stamell peticote, on boulster and on palow, on peuter dish and on candlestick."

John Kimball<sup>2</sup> married Mary Bradstreet about 1655. He came over in the same ship with her and her father and mother. She was born in England in 1633. Most historians say that John married for his second wife Mary Jordan. This is an error. (See John<sup>3</sup>, Henry<sup>2</sup>, Richard<sup>1</sup>.) On March 8, 1673, he united with the church by taking the covenant. His will was made March 18, 1697-8. In it he mentions his sons Richard, John, and Mosis, to whom he gives six shillings a peece in money, which is all I intend to for them having by deed of gift giuene before what I them intended out of my estat. He mentions his six dafters Mary Sarah, hannah, Rebekah Elizabeth, and Abigail. His sunes Benjamin and Joseph kimbal have all the personal property divided between them, except one steer that he gives "to my sun beniamin, and my best cubbard I giue toe my sun beniamin's wife: in consideration of what they haue dune or may doe for me in my eage and weaknes." His real estate had all been given away before this time, and his personal property which was estimated at £131.9s.11d. consisted mainly of "Quick Stock" as follows Six Oxen £24. Eight cows £26. 13 young cattle £18.10s. 29 shepp £6. 12 swine £5.

5 Thomas Kimball<sup>2</sup> (Richard<sup>1</sup>) was born in Rattlesden, Suffolk county, England, in 1633, and was one year old when he came to New England with his parents. He later went to Ipswich, Mass., and was living in Hampton, N. H., Oct. 20, 1653, and was an owner of mill property there on Oyster river. He made his home at that place as late as 1660. He afterwards removed to that portion of Rowley which is included in the present town of Bradford, Mass. Previous to 1675 the section where Thomas and his brother Benjamin lived was within the limits of Rowley, but the locality was called Merrimack when Thomas was elected a constable on Feb. 20, 1668-9. His house was one of the legal places for posting and "publishing any orders or other business of public concernment to the whole town." His house was situated on the Boxford road, and its situation can still be located. At that place he lived and prospered for about ten years. He was a mechanic and a thrifty farmer, owning over four hundred acres of land and a large amount of personal property, as is shown by the inventory of his estate.

At that time the skulking Indians continually annoyed the white inhabitants. The Merrimac river was a pathway; the Indians could make rapid sallies upon the settlements and make their escape without penetrating the forests. Haverhill had been attacked with all the cruelty of the savages. On the night of May 2, 1676, three well known "converted" (half civilized) Indians, Peter, Andrew, and Symon, were intending to kill some parties in Rowley, but the night being far advanced, they wreaked their vengeance upon the Kimballs. Thomas Kimball was killed by Symon, and his wife and five children, namely, Joanna, Thomas, Joseph, Priscilla, and John were taken captive and carried forty miles into the wilderness, where they remained forty-one days, and were freed without ransom by the friendly offices of the chief Wanalancet, of the Pennacook Indians. Her own life and that of her infant were threatened, and twice were the fires lighted to burn them. They reached their home June 13, 1676.

Great was the anguish of their friends during their captivity, and on May 3, 1676, her pious parents in Ipswich asked prayers on the Sabbath that they might be delivered.

Subsequently she addressed a petition to the Governor and Council that she might be protected from Simon, the Indian, who had threatened to kill her and her children if she returned to her own house. The three Indians were seized and confined in jail, but escaped and pursued their course of blood most mercilessly thereafter, and their subsequent fate is unknown. They were semi-civilized and had worked for and lived a great deal with the white people. Thomas Kimball married Mary, daughter of Thomas and Joanna Smith of Ipswich, as is shown by the following note from the records at Salem: "Nov. 18, 1686 Richard and Benjamin Kimball of Bradford did covenant to and with the Selectmen of Ipswich that they would take Thomas Smith and his wife to Bradford to the house of Mary Kimball the widow of Thomas Kimball and provide their Meate, drink, washing, lodgeing, clothes and attendance with all things necessary for persons in such a condition for the space of one year begining at the date hereof, the price for a year to be £25." "Dec. 8, 1681 Agreed with Richard Kimball of Bradford to allow unto him further keeping and providing for his grandfather Thomas Smith for the year ensuing £13." According to this Joanna Smith had probably died during the year.

The name of Thomas Kimball<sup>2</sup> occurs very frequently on the early records of the town of Merrimack. Until the time of his death he always held some town office, being frequently selectman.

6 Benjamin Kimball<sup>2</sup> (Richard<sup>1</sup>), born in 1637, about the time that his father moved from Watertown to Ipswich, Mass. He died June 11, 1695. He was probably a resident of Exeter, N. H., in 1659, a carpenter by trade. Removed to Salisbury, Mass., and was on the trial jury in 1662. Was a resident of Rowley, Mass., May 12, 1663, when he bought land in Rowley of Elizabeth Starrett of Haverhill, Mass. At this time Rowley included within its limits the present Bradford, Georgetown, and Groveland. His land was in what is now known as Bradford. On Feb. 20, 1668, at the first town meeting in Merrimack, afterwards Bradford, he was chosen an overseer of the town. He was called of that town, March 16, 1670, and March 15, 1674. On Jan. 6, 1675, he and his wife Mery of Bradford, Mass., sold forty acres of land to the inhabitants of that town for the use of the minister. On Nov. 23, 1667, he bought several tracts of land. Among them was land which once belonged to his brother, Thomas Kimball<sup>2</sup>, who was killed by an Indian on May 3, 1676. He was cornet of horse troops and was known as "Cornet Kimball." He and his brother, Richard Kimball<sup>2</sup>, were soldiers in 1683 and 1684, under Capt. Appleton. His house was in the west parish of old Bradford, not far from the ancient cemetery. He was a wheelwright and a farmer. He married in Salisbury, Mass., April, 1661, Mery, daughter of Robert and Ann Hazeltine.* She was born 16, 8<sup>mo</sup>, 1642, and died Jan. 5, 1707-8. She was one of the first members received into the first church in Bradford, when she, with sixteen other women, were admitted January 7, 1682-3. Her will, made May 14, 1706, was proven February 2, 1707-8. She gives the names of her children in the will. His inventory showed that he was well off for the times. The total amount of the estate was £1060.7s. Among the assets was a one-fourth interest in a saw-mill in Haverhill, Mass., near the Amesbury line, that he bought of Matthew Harriman. This interest was handed down

* Robert Hazeltine and his brother John were among the earliest settlers of that part of Rowley that is now known as Bradford, and Robert had afterwards permission to ferry passengers across the Merrimack river. The first marriage recorded on the Rowley books is "Robert Hazeltine and Ann his wife were married 10mo 23, 1639," but her family name is not given.

in the family for several generations. The gravestones of Benjamin and Mercy Kimball may still be seen in the cemetery at Bradford.

THIRD GENERATION.

8 Richard Kimball<sup>3</sup> (Henry<sup>2</sup>, Richard<sup>1</sup>) was born at Watertown, Mass., Oct. 13, 1643; died at Wenham, July 30, 1715. He went from Watertown, with his parents, to Ipswich, Mass., and from thence went to Wenham, where he afterwards lived. On May 13, 1667, he married Rebecca, daughter of John Abbye of Wenham, Mass., who died June, 1704. He married second, Nov. 20, 1706, the widow Ford of Ipswich, Mass. He was one of the administrators of his father's estate. In 1715 he testified that he remembered that Walter Fairfield, Sr., had a house within the bounds of Ipswich before 1661 in which Richard Coy lived as a tenant now in possession of sd. Fairfield.

9 John Kimball<sup>3</sup> (Henry<sup>2</sup>, Richard<sup>1</sup>) was born at Watertown, Mass., Dec. 25, 1645. When about sixteen years of age he went to live with his grandfather, John Wiatt of Ipswich, where he remained until his grandfather died, in December, 1665, when the property was left to him by will upon his fulfilling certain conditions. This property was bounded on the "Meeting house Green." This shows where he lived in Ipswich. He sold this estate March 25, 1667, and removed to Newbury, Mass., where he was living on June 17, 1668. About 1669 he removed to Amesbury, Mass., where he afterwards lived. He testified in the trial of Susan Martin for witchcraft, on May 16, 1692, and then states that "twenty-three years ago when about to move from Newbury," etc. A full account of his testimony may be found in Increase Mather's account of the witch trials. He was a yeoman and wheelwright, took the oath of allegiance December 20, 1677, was made freeman in 1690, served as appraiser of different estates, and died previous to May 20, 1726. Administration was granted to his son John, June 6, 1726. He married, October, 1665, Mary, daughter of Francis and Jane Jordan. This is shown by the following receipt: "Know ye that John Kimball, Thomas fowler, and James George all of Almsbury have rec'd our part of ye Estate of Francis Jordan according to ye last will of Jane Jordon of Ipswich 8 of December 1693." The original of this receipt is on file at Salem in the envelope that contains Jane Jordan's will.

In Jane Jordan's will she leaves one-sixth part of her estate to Mary Kimball. She then says: "My will is having paid John Kimball more than any of the rest out of the estate, that five pounds be accounted towards his sixth part and the rest I hereby give to pay for what Labour and pains he hath taken for me about my bussinese accounting that he hath rec'd ten pounds more than this which I account towards his sixth part."

He may have married Mary Pressy of Amesbury, Feb. 9, 1712-3, as a marriage is recorded at Newbury between John Kimball and Mary Pressy. If this was so, she soon died, and in April, 1715, he married the widow Deborah (Weed) Bartlett, who was born June 15, 1659, daughter of John Weed. She survived him.

She and her only son John were killed by the Indians, March 15, 1696-7. Henry did not marry again, and so left no male descendant, but the descendants of his daughters are very numerous. August 24, 1665, Richard Hubbard confirmed to Richard Kimball of Wenham his farm in Rowley village (now Boxford). John probably settled on this land. He was made freeman March 22, 1688-9. By the frequency with which the name of "Corporal" Kimball is found upon the early records of the town it is evident that he was a man of importance in town affairs. In 1675 he was tax collector. In 1711 his name and those of his sons are upon the tax list. He was a member of the church in Topsfield, and was dismissed to the church in Boxford in 1702. His father gave him, March 28, 1696, "in consideration of his marriage with Susanna Goodhue, the right to pasture three cows in the pasture of Richard Kimball, that was his father John's." He was by occupation a tailor, and lived in Ipswich where the railroad station now stands. His father gave him, in 1696, a certain house, orchard, and one acre of land on the road to Topsfield. He dealt largely in real estate, and many transfers to and from him are recorded on the Salem records. Administration was granted to his son Moses, May 7, 1750.

25 John<sup>8</sup> (Thomas<sup>2</sup>, Richard<sup>1</sup>) was born in Rowley, Oct. 14, 1675. He left that town previous to 1702 and went to Piscataqua, in the province of East Jersey. So far we have been unable to find any further traces of him. The records of the courts in East Jersey are all at Trenton, and we have examined them without finding any trace of John. The only Kimballs so far found in New Jersey have either proved to be descendants of the other branches of the family or have turned out to be Kembles, there being two families at least of Kembles in the state.

26 Richard<sup>8</sup> (Benjamin<sup>2</sup>, Richard<sup>1</sup>) born Dec. 30, 1665; died Jan. 10, 1711; married Sept. 6, 1692, Mehitable Day, born Jan. 26, 1669, daughter of John and Sarah (Pengry) Day. After Richard Kimball died she married his cousin Richard, the son of Thomas, and survived him. She was the wife of two Richard Kimballs, and had a son and step-son Richard Kimball. Richard Kimball lived in Bradford and was prominent in town affairs, being town clerk for many years. In the division of his father's estate he received one-fourth part of his interest in the saw-mill in Haverhill, also land and meadows in that place and in Amesbury.

He married second, Nov. 3, 1739, widow Jane Plummer, who died 1764. His last marriage, late in life and soon after the death of his first wife, evidently was not a happy one, as he says in his will: "Since my wife Jane has eloped and refuses to live with me, I give her five shillings and a pair of leather gloves." The widow was not satisfied with this, for afterwards she receipts for £50. Jonathan Kimball bought and sold many tracts of land. Some of the deeds concerning these transfers throw considerable light on the relations of various parties concerned. Jonathan of Bradford for love and good will gives all his lands in Chester to be equally divided among his four sons Benjamin, Jonathan, Nathaniel, and Isaac, Nov. 12, 1733.

Bay. and others are low in estate. So she depends on my brothers James and Reuben of Hopkinton and myself. I leave so much as my executors may think necessary during her natural life or widowhood not exceeding 40 shillings or less than 10 shillings lawful money." After the death of his mother the balance of his estate to go to his brothers James and Reuben. This will is a good illustration of the poverty of the country at this time, when a sum of not over $8.00 is mentioned as an annuity for the support of an aged mother.

It is said that he married at the age of eighteen and went north of the river, three miles into the woods, to clear his farm, and his mother was very much distressed at the great danger he ran from the Indians. The date of his death is erroneously given on the monument erected to his memory in Plaistow graveyard as 1752.

96 Philip Kimball<sup>4</sup> (Robert<sup>3</sup>, Benjamin<sup>2</sup>, Richard<sup>1</sup>) born in Bradford, Mass., Feb. 1, 1711-2; died 1800, Concord, N. H.; married Dorcas Foster. Philip Kimball's and Dorcas Foster's purposes of marriage were posted up at the meeting house in Rumford on the 31st day of July, 1735. He bought from Ebenezer, Joseph, and Solomon, his brothers, their share in original right of Robert Kimball in Rumford, June 14, 1745. This homestead Philip and Dorcas sold to Benjamin Rolfe, Jan. 28, 1768. He resided in Concord, N. H., on the place where Samuel Curtis lived in 1856. He was a famous hunter and versed in all the customs of the Indians. Parties when going for their cattle at night went armed in times of Indian hostilities. Mr. Kimball once saw a man following home the cows with his gun supported on his arms. He being behind a tree, when the man passed by, sprang out upon him, and clasped him securely by the waist. The man supposed an Indian had assailed him and struggled violently. At length Kimball released him, saying, "When you go for the cows, start them on their way home, but never follow them; take a circuit, and thus avoid the Indians, who are on the lookout when the cows are coming from pasture." He was a noted marksman, and Deer Rock in Concord is so called because he once shot a noble buck there. He was corporal on a scouting party under John Goff in 1746.

“July 22, 1747. The mark of Oliver Kimball’s cattel and other cuachers is a swalous tail of ye right ear, and a halfany ye upr sid of ye left ear.” In new countries all the cattle are turned to pasture in the woods in the spring, and herd together, therefore it is very important that each farmer should have some distinguishing mark on his cattle. These marks were registered on the town books, and were generally made by cutting pieces out of the ears, rarely by branding.

Accusations are brought as follows: The sd Kimball did say that he did not blame General Gage for coming into this North America. But he did not Justify or approve of his evil conduct since he had been in ye country. Further the said Kimball is for keeping up Civil Authority. 198 Daniel Kimball<sup>5</sup> (Daniel<sup>4</sup>, Joseph<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, Richard<sup>1</sup>) born in Ipswich, Mass., Oct. 20, 1755; died May 24, 1843, his death being hastened by his being thrown from his carriage; married June 15, 1783, Elizabeth Osgood, daughter of John and Mary (Phelps) Osgood of North Andover, Mass., born March 1, 1757, died Dec. 3, 1789; married 2d, June 21, 1791, Abiah Holt, daughter of Joshua and Phebe (Farnum) Holt of Andover, Mass., born April 16, 1761, died May 4, 1841. He and his wife united with the South church in Andover, Mass., Oct. 26, 1783, and were dismissed to the church in Hancock, N. H., March 16, 1789, and he was made deacon of that church Oct. 20, 1791.

He enlisted on the Lexington alarm, April 19, 1775, in Capt. Jacob Gould's Co. He at one time worked in the powder mill owned by Samuel Phillips, which in 1776 made powder for the army. He went to Cambridge, Mass., and staid in the army a few weeks in the latter part of 1775. He enlisted Jan. 1, 1776, in Capt. Mighill's Co., Loami Baldwin's Regiment, and was stationed at Cambridge, Mass., until the British left Boston, when he marched to New London, Conn., and from thence went to New York by water. He remained there until the army left the city. Then he went to White Plains, but was not in the battle. Afterwards he went to Morristown, N. J., where he was sick until the expiration of his service. He enlisted for eight months, April, 1777, and on May 1 went to Cambridge, Mass., where he was sick with the small pox. After his recovery he joined the army at Stillwater, and was in the last part of the last battle at that place. He was in Col. Nichol's Regiment, he thinks, in Capt. Whipple's Co.; was at Stillwater till after Burgoyne's surrender, then went to Albany, and was stationed there till expiration of term of service, in December, 1777. He was a pensioner, and the above is from the pension rolls, Washington, D. C.

The war left him, as many others, poor, and so he took up new lands in Greenfield, N. H., and while clearing his land slept in a hollow log and stopped up the entrance with a stump to keep out the wild animals. Later he went to Hancock, N. H., where he spent the remainder of his life. In order to earn money with which to pay for his farm, he shaved shingles, often by the light of pine knots prolonging his work late into the night, his wife occupying herself by carding wool to keep her family in clothes. Letters written by him when past eighty years of age show his intelligence and good penmanship. He enjoyed good health and was an active man. He was a member of the board of selectmen of Hancock, N. H. He is remembered as a good reader and speaker, and frequently read sermons in the church when there was no minister.

He lived in Concord on the place now occupied by Samuel S. Kimball. He was a man of strong religious convictions, and he united with the church in Bradford at the age of eighteen, and during his long life honored his Christian profession. During thirty years he was absent but once from public worship. He was very hospitable, and clergymen were always his welcome guests. Among them were his most valued friends. For twenty-nine years he was an officer of the church. He was noted for the fidelity and promptness with which he performed his public and private duties. The Sabbath was a day of sacred rest to him. Mrs. Kimball was a true and loving companion during their fifty years of wedded life. In 1769 she united with the church in Concord, and remembered the church by a bequest in her will.

From a notice of his death we extract the following: "Without doubt he resided longer in the township, and was better acquainted and identified with its history than any other citizen. His memory was a store-house of information in regard to incidents connected with the evolution of the town from a primeval forest to the present time. When a young man he made choice of the carpenter trade as a pursuit. He built the first framed school-house in the town, which was located within the present village limits. Many of the framed houses in the town were built by him, and their enduring quality attests substantial and thorough workmanship. In 1851 he was employed by the Cleveland, Painesville and Ashtabula Railway Company to superintend the construction of all its depots, freight houses, etc., on its line between Cleveland and Erie. He continued in the employ of the company until 1858, when he retired from the active pursuits of his calling. He was long connected with the Congregational church in Madison, and was one of its active members. He was largely instrumental in the construction of the church building, and when it was repaired, shortly before his death, he presented the pews to the society. He was not a man who cared or sought for positions of public trust, but had held one or two town offices, and at the time of his death he was a director in the Exchange bank."

She was descended from Richard Mather, the early minister of Dorchester, Mass., whose son, Increase Mather, was president of Harvard college, and whose grandson, Cotton Mather, was a celebrated minister. She was a woman of more than ordinary ability and well fitted for her position. Morally and intellectually her standard was high, and she so taught her children. He had but a common school education, and prepared himself for the ministry at a time when its duties were more than ordinarily laborious and self-denying, and when the burdens rested heavily on the wives. He at first located in Marlboro, Vt., in charge of the Presbyterian church; he left there about 1805, when he removed to Leroy, N. Y., where he remained till about 1816, when he went to Leyden, N. Y. He remained at this place until his death. He died while on a visit to his son, David M. Kimball, of Massachusetts. Though strict in his religious views and habits, he was still paternal and kind. His heart was always open to the unfortunate, and his benevolence was constant and in amount up to the scriptural standard. He was dignified, earnest, and thoughtful.

H., Feb. 12, 1860; married 1795, Mary Marsh, born 1773, daughter of Joel Marsh. They resided at Windham, N. H., and at other places, living for many years at West Lebanon, N. H. The Historical Magazine, vol. iv, p. 127, says: "Few men have passed a longer and more practically useful life than Capt. Richard Kimball, who died Feb. 12, 1860, at Mount Lebanon, N. H., in the ninety-second year of his age. Capt. Kimball is well known in this city (New York), where several of his sons reside. He was identified with all the early internal improvements in New England. When DeWitt Clinton commenced the construction of the Erie and Champlain canals, he was seeking for men having practical knowledge on the subject. He was referred by some gentlemen in Massachusetts to the deceased as the man who had been principally engaged in constructing the Middlesex canal, the first canal made in this country. Mr. Clinton at once paid a visit to Mr. Kimball, and after spending a week at his hospitable residence in New Hampshire, induced him to come to this state and undertake the superintendence and construction of the most difficult works which presented themselves at the commencement of the Erie and Champlain canals. For many years Gov. Clinton was accustomed to consult Capt. Kimball in all matters of practical difficulty in relation to the canals, and as an evidence of Mr. Clinton's confidence in his judgment, we have heard from one who was present, that on one occasion, at a meeting of the canal commissioners, it was insisted by some one that it was impossible to construct the Champlain canal through Ding Swamp, in Washington county. Gov. Clinton said, It can be done; I have consulted Mr. Kimball and he says it is practicable. Mr. Kimball undertook the work himself and it was finished satisfactorily. Capt. Kimball was distinguished for his hospitality and for the interest he took in educational and benevolent enterprises. His fondness for home and agricultural pursuits are attested by his residence of more than fifty years upon his farm on the Connecticut river, which in point of culture and beauty is unsurpassed in that beautiful valley. He leaves a widow eighty-seven years old, with whom he passed sixty-five years of happy wedded life."

He took an active part in public affairs, was commissioned ensign Aug. 27, 1789, promoted captain, April 10, 1796, major, April 29, 1802, lieutenant-colonel, June 23, 1806, and was discharged Jan. 6, 1810. He helped to found the Bradford Academy and was one of its trustees, and as there was then no boarding house, he entertained many of the students. He was a man of good character and more than ordinary ability, was active and successful in business, very affectionate, a kind neighbor, public spirited. He had a high spirit and passionate nature. He was a good hater when occasion demanded. He was large, of commanding presence, regular featured, and of sanguine temperament. His death was caused by paralysis. One beautiful morning in June, as the end drew near, many were gathered about him in the large west room of the Deacon Jesse Kimball house, in Bradford, Mass., while for him the voice of his saintly son, Deacon Jesse, uttered petitions to the All Father. His countenance suddenly changed, and he was gone. There was a great funeral the following Sabbath. The coffin was placed in the great front yard. Trustees, students, neighbors, and numberless relatives were there. The latter returned to the house for supper, and were so numerous that they could not be seated.

H., July 9, 1862, daughter of Thomas and Martha (Park) Reed* of Uxbridge, Mass. Her father's family was intellectual and refined and its members were all well educated. She inherited the elevated instincts of her race. She was very ambitious that her children should have a good education and a fair start in the race of life, and she labored to so place them that they would receive academical training. After the death of her husband she moved to Windham, N. H., where she lived with her daughter, Mrs. Eleanor Reed (Kimball) Morrison, and the remainder of her life passed in quietness and peace. Joab Kimball was raised upon a farm in the west parish of Haverhill, Mass. When he was a boy of twelve years old the country became engaged in the War of the Revolution, and he very early entered the army, where he spent three years. He enlisted April 10, 1781, at Haverhill, marched to Boston, thence to West Point, N. Y. In April, 1781, he was in Capt. Sylvanus Smith's Co., Col. Rufus Putnam's Regt. This was the Fifth Mass. Regiment, and belonged to the brigade under the command of Gen. Patterson. He served in this regiment until Feb., 1783, when he was transferred to the First Mass. Regt., and served in Capt. Goodell's Co. until Dec., 1783, when he was discharged at West Point, N. Y., by order of Gen. Henry Knox. The order for the discharge is now in the possession of Leonard A. Morrison, his grandson. It bears the autograph signature of Gen. Knox. He underwent great privations while in the service, and was disabled by them for life, his health being permanently injured. He, with the other soldiers in his company, had fatiguing marches and was often destitute of food. In the winter they had frequently to sleep on beds made of the boughs of pine and hemlock. He was a very handsome man, short, fleshy, and of a light, florid complexion. His wife was of medium height, with hazel eyes, dark brown hair, and light complexion. He lost much of his property in early life by endorsing notes for friends, which they allowed him to pay. From these reverses he never fully recovered. He and his wife resided for many years in Ryegate, Barnet, and Peacham, Vt. They were members of the church and their lives corresponded with their high professions.

It was discovered too late to insert in the proper place that James Kimball (244) went to Enfield, N. H., with his family, and there joined the Shakers. Becoming dissatisfied with them he left their society and went to Sheldon, Vt., in 1796, taking his family with him. In addition to the children given on page 166, he had a son born in 1770, or '71, named Solomon F., and also a son Jesse. The descendants of James are given below where they properly belong. We are indebted to B. F. Cummings of Salt Lake City, Utah, for this information.

Settled in Sheldon, Vt., with his parents. He resided there until his death, which occurred about 1846. He was a party to numerous land transactions in Sheldon, and owned the farm on which is situated the famous Mississquoi spring. No clue to a wife or children is given on the records, but from local tradition it is probable he is to build a flour mill, was from Utica, the center of the butter and cheese industry of New York. He says in this letter that "We think that Chicago will be one of the most important places in all the western country." He says that he is going to build a saw and shingle mill at Elgin. He and Mr. Gifford are to build the dam together.

From an account of the celebration of Mrs. Kimball's hundredth birthday we make the following extracts. Mr. and Mrs. Kimball were greatly respected people in their New Hampshire home. Mr. Kimball was honored with several offices of trust. He was a captain of cavalry in the Thirty-Fourth Regiment of New Hampshire militia. His commission was dated May 24, 1816, and he served for three years. He was a justice of the peace for Grafton county. Mrs. Kimball retained her faculties to a remarkable degree to beyond her hundredth year. Towards her end she gradually failed and her mind kept returning to her younger days in New Hampshire. She said she must go home to attend to her various duties about the farm. She passed away peacefully, surrounded by her family, and went to that home where all the associates of her youth and most of her children had preceded her.

The seven older children were born in Groton, N. H. Two were born in Plymouth, N. H.

daughter of Peter and Elizabeth (Poor) Coburn of Dracut, Mass., and grand-daughter of Dea. Daniel and Hannah (Frye) Poor of Andover, Mass. In May, 1798, he entered Atkinson Academy, which he left Aug. 14, 1799, and entered Harvard College. He ranked high as a scholar, was graduated in 1803, and delivered the valedictory oration in Latin. He received the degree of A. M. in 1806. He taught one year in Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass. He pursued the study of theology at Andover, under Rev. Jonathan French, who had several students in theology. This was the beginning of the theological seminary. He was approved by the association Aug. 6, 1805. Sept. 22, 1805, he first preached in Ipswich, Mass., and received a unanimous call on June 17, 1806. On Oct. 8, 1806, he was ordained over the first church in Ipswich, the eleventh pastor in succession. In his profession he devoted his affections, his time, and his talents to the service of the Master. He averaged five hundred visits yearly among his people, and often spent whole nights in affectionate ministrations to the sick and dying. In his prime he was six feet in height, weighed one hundred and seventy-five pounds, his eyes and hair were black, his step firm and elastic, his voice was pleasing, his enunciation distinct, and his manner calm and impressive. More than sixty pulpits were open to his ministrations by exchange. He took great interest in education and the public schools of every grade, in the cause of foreign missions he was an earnest laborer, in the anti-slavery agitation, a strong aider and defender. He was one of the original members of the first temperance society in the country. This society was instituted in 1813 and united heart and soul with all subsequent temperance movements. In the American Educational Society, which aimed to educate young men for the Christian ministry, he was greatly interested, and was for a time its secretary. To educate and equip with armor of heavenly temper, heralds of salvation to souls perishing for the bread of life, was in his estimation an object in which angels might well engage, and which Heaven stoops down to bless. During his ministry his church was blessed with several precious revivals of religion. In his home was dispensed a generous hospitality. His ministry to his people for nearly half a century was ever faithful. As a writer in the English language he was clear and forcible. He was an accurate scholar and instructive preacher. He was warm and tender in his domestic affections. In piety, sincere. When he drew near the river's brink, and some thought he had passed over, he revived and exclaimed, "The gates of the New Jerusalem are opening; I see within the city." At the moment of the soul's departure from the body there came to his lips a smile of ineffable sweetness, and there it remained till he was laid away near the center of the ancient cemetery in Ipswich. Among his published writings were the following: A sermon preached at the installation of the Reverend William Richie, in 1821, on "The Perfect Pattern for Christian Teachers." A sermon on the text "O, How I Love Thy Law." In 1823, a sketch of the Ecclesiastical History of Ipswich. And numerous other sermons. Mrs. Kimball survived her husband thirteen years and died in Ipswich in her ninety-first year. She was a devoted wife and mother, active and prominent in all societies and good works connected with the church and parish, and lived a beautiful Christian life.

H., July 15, 1830; married March 2, 1814, at Greenland, N. H., Hannah Philbrick, born —, died 1831. He enlisted April 22, 1812, at which time he was about twenty years old, six feet and half an inch in height, for five years, in the company commanded by Capt. J. B. Walbach, that was attached to the First Regiment of Artillery, and was stationed at Fort Constitution in Portsmouth, N. H. While serving as sergeant in the above named company, a very severe storm, which occurred on the 27th of May, 1813, caused a barge to part from its moorings. Under the influence of the wind and tide it was stranded on the beach in the town of New Castle, near the fort. Sergeant Kimball on that day being in charge of the police, was engaged in recovering the barge, and while lifting it so as to float it, he ruptured himself in the right groin. During this period of service, in 1813, the fort was threatened by the enemy with an attack, and again in 1814. The garrison was at one time in daily expectation of it. In December, 1815, he was ordered to join Capt. Whiting at Fort Preble, in Portland, Me., where he remained until discharged, April 22, 1817. He again enlisted on the 22d of June, 1817, in the Second Battalion, Ninth Division, and although the inspector objected to him on account of his disability, he was received upon the recommendations of his officers, particularly Capt. Walbach, then promoted to a higher rank, who said that from his correct deportment, strict attention, and obedience, his sobriety and intelligence, he was a most useful non-commissioned officer in the discharge of garrison duty. He continued at Fort Preble until he was transferred to Rhode Island, where he remained until he was discharged in 1822. After this he attempted to support his family by keeping a sailors' boarding house, but was not very successful. (From the rolls at Washington, D. C.)

His Excellency

CHRISTOPHER GORE ESQUIRE

Governor and Commander in Chief of the

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS

To Leonard Kimball Esquire Greeting:

C. GORE.

You being appointed on the third day of July A. D. One Thousand eight Hundred and nine by Major General Elias Hasket Derby of the Second Division of the Militia of this Commonwealth to be his Aid-de-Camp

Reposing Special trust and confidence in your ability, courage and good conduct, I do by Virtue of the Power vested in me, Commission you accordingly, with the Rank of Major. You will therefore, with fidelity and honour discharge the Duty of that Office, according to the laws and Regulations provided for governing and regulating the Militia. And you will observe and follow all such orders as you shall receive from the Major-General and others your superior Officers Given under my Hand and the Seal of the Commonwealth the fifth day of July in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and nine and the thirty third year of the independance of the United States of America.

By his Excellency the Governor

William Tudor Secretary of the Commonwealth.

He qualified July 8, 1809. Previous to his marriage Judge Joseph Story wrote him the following letter :

SALEM Aug. 2, 1822.

Dear Sir—I yesterday received your letter of the 29th of July. I certainly can have no objection to stating my opinion of your character, so far as my own knowledge will warrant. In respect to your family connections I can say nothing because they do not reside in this town, and I never had the pleasure of an acquaintance with them. During your residence in this town I can very cheerfully state that your conduct & character were, as far as I had any knowledge or information, entirely unexceptionable; and your acquaintance & associations were with the first society in the place. I have always considered you as a gentleman of perfectly correct habits, manners & principles; and your public education and acquirements secured you general respect among our best citizens. I should use stronger language if the delicate situation in which your letter places me, did not incline me to great caution. I should be truly glad to hear, that you are successful in your present attachment—for after all I consider domestic life as the truest as well as the most constant source of happiness—but as this letter is to pass under the eye of a parent, justly anxious for the happiness of a daughter, I feel scrupulous in using any expressions which might seem rather to result from personal regard, than from judgment.

I am with great respect your obedient friend and servant

Joseph Story

Leonard Kimball Esq.

Baltimore.

Similar letters were sent by Leverett Saltonstall of Salem,

EDMUND KIMBALL.

Mass., and Harrison Gray Otis of Boston, Mass. The latter mentions the fact that he lived several years in Boston, Mass. After his marriage he lived in Baltimore, Md., and Philadelphia, Pa.

He filled such positions for over forty years with faithfulness, and was a helpful friend to the fatherless and the widow. He was loved and honored by all who knew him and shared the hospitality of his home. He is especially remembered by the boys of his day for many hearty invitations to ride or to help themselves to the tempting fruit in his orchard. 710 Josiah Kimball<sup>7</sup> (David<sup>6</sup>, Aaron<sup>5</sup>, Richard<sup>4</sup>, John<sup>3</sup>, Richard<sup>2</sup>, Richard<sup>1</sup>) born in Boxford, Mass., April 6, 1790; died Boston, Mass., Oct. 24, 1878; married Dec. 30, 1833, Mary Wood Spofford, born Feb. 22, 1799, died Nov. 2, 1888, daughter of Parker and Abby (Hale) Spofford. He lived in Boxford until May 20, 1852, when he moved to Lawrence, Mass. From there he went to Boston, in December, 1859, and lived in this city until he died. He was an active man, held many offices of trust, both public and private, being frequently called upon to settle estates. In Boxford he held about all the public offices that it was possible for him to hold. He was repeatedly selectman and overseer of the poor, he was town treasurer for a number of years, and when he left Boxford he had served more years on the school committee than any other man living in the town. He was parish clerk for many years, and also served for a long time on the parish committee and board of assessors. He was deacon of the first church in Boxford, which office he resigned about the time he left the town. In 1830 several thousand dollars were raised by subscription as a permanent parish fund, the annual interest of the same to be applied towards the payment of the salary of an Orthodox Congregational minister settled in the parish. He contributed to this fund, and was one of the original trustees of the fund, his name appearing in the act of incorporation. He was a member of the legislature in the year 1838, when the subject of licensing the sale of intoxicating liquors was so fully discussed and what was called the fifteen-gallon law was enacted. At this time his name was recorded on the side of temperance, he having been a consistent temperance man from the earliest stages of the temperance reform. A few years before his death he became much interested in the history of his family and collected a number of notes in regard to them. From these we select the following in regard to his father, David Kimball. The notes came into our possession too late to insert in the proper place :

“ At the age of nineteen my father was chosen to assist Deacon Aaron Kimball in setting the Psalm, so saith the record. My father was chorister for many years, and until he had an attack of bronchitis, which so affected his organs of speech that for months he could not speak except in a kind of coarse whisper. That illness terminated his services as chorister.”

“ I presume my father had about as perfect a tenor voice as ever falls to the lot of mankind. Mr. Holyoke repeatedly spake of my father's voice and singing. He remarked that ‘ When your father led off with the tenor, my blood would thrill from the crown of my head to the soles of my feet,’ and that in all his intercourse with musicians, and in all the schools that he had taught, he never met with a man who had so good a tenor voice, and added that ‘ If I had his voice I would go to Europe and make an independent fortune in a few years.’ Mr. Jacob Kimball of Topsfield, also a noted musician, expressed similar views in regard to my father's voice and singing, and told me of a concert which was held in the meeting-house in Boxford, which he attended when he was a young man, and said, ‘ I thought at that time that I was quite a smart singer, but when I heard your father sing I found that he was far in advance of me.’ ”

In 1812 he removed with his father's family to Madison, Lake Co., Ohio, in the Western Reserve. There he lived for nearly seventy years. During his active life he occupied numerous positions of public trust and responsibility. In the early history of the Reserve great attention was given to military matters, and most of the settlers belonged to the militia organizations. As a young man he was much interested in these organizations, and organized and commanded a company. By regular promotion he reached the rank of brigadier-general, which explains the title by which he was familiarly known. He was sheriff for two terms, and represented Lake county three terms in the legislature. He served the township in the capacities of township trustee, real estate appraiser, and justice of the peace, holding the latter office several terms. While serving from Lake county in the legislature he obtained of his own motion, unsolicited by his constituents, the charter of the Cleveland, Painesville & Ashtabula Railroad Co., and designated its incorporators. He was actively interested in and connected with the organization of the company, secured subscriptions to its capital stock, and also the right of way for its road. He presided at the meeting in Cleveland at which the company was organized, served as its treasurer, collecting the subscriptions, and continuing in that relation to the company until his infirmities compelled him to retire. He was actively connected with the religious movements of the town. He united with the Second church, March 1, 1834. About 1855, as the result of an injury which seemed slight at the time, but developed into a spinal difficulty, he lost the use of his legs, and was confined to his chair for the last seventeen years of his life.

He was graduated from Harvard College in the class of 1814, of which Prescott, the historian, and James Walker, afterwards president of Harvard College, were members. He commenced the study of law in Boston, Mass., spending some time in the office of Daniel Webster. He practised law for some years, withdrawing from practice about 1840. He retired to his estate in Wenham, where he lived until his death. He was elected representative in the legislature from Boston in 1820, was afterwards state senator, and represented Wenham in the general court. He was one of the old school of polished gentlemen, and through his kindness and urbanity commanded the respect and affection of all who came in contact with him. (He became possessed of the idea that the name Kimball was wrongly spelled, taking this notion from some old documents on file at Salem. He did not change the spelling of his own name, but his children have adopted the spelling Kemble. This spelling, as we have shown elsewhere, is not the correct one; the old spelling of Kemble, as occasionally found on the old records, is merely the mistaken spelling of illiterate persons.)

H.; married 2d, Jan. 4, 1859, Kate (Brown) Rowe, born —, died Concord, N. H., Feb. 6, 1879, daughter of Matthew Nealey Brown of Canterbury, N. H. He was educated at Phillips Academy, Exeter, where he was graduated in 1825. After following the mercantile business in Canterbury and Northfield ten years, in 1836 he moved to South Boscawen, N. H., and opened a store for the sale of goods, taking in Luther G. Johnson as partner. They were the first tradesmen in what is now Penacook. Changes in the business were made, Mr. Johnson removed to Minneapolis, and Mr. Kimball to Concord, where he went into business. Those interested in the study of heredity will notice these facts: Jeremiah Kimball was the seventh generation from Richard<sup>1</sup> through his son Richard. Harvey Kimball belonged to the same generation, through Benjamin<sup>2</sup>, and there had been no inter-marriages between the two tribes. Therefore they were fifth cousins, yet they looked enough alike to be twin brothers. Their hair and eyes were the same, they had the same remarkable memory, either of them would entertain his listeners by recounting the public speeches and sermons they had heard, giving the time, place, subject, and general drift of the remarks, from their early youth to their old age. Other characteristics, mental and physical, were equally well marked. The author, L. A. Morrison, knew them both and was wonderfully struck with the strong resemblance between them in many ways. No children.

of the family for many years. After his marriage he lived in a house built by himself, situated just south of the Union meeting-house in Canterbury, where he lived until 1840, when he removed to the homestead of his father-in-law in Gilmanton. Later in life he went to East Concord, N. H. He represented the town of Gilmanton in the legislature of 1866-'67.

He learned the trade of a millwright with his brother Joseph. He went to Boscawen in 1832, and was a partner in business with his cousin, Benjamin. He was frequently elected to fill various offices in town. In 1835 he was an owner in the valuable water-power, now the basis of the manufacturing village of Penacook. In early life he was successfully engaged in building factories, mills, and machinery in New Hampshire and Massachusetts. From 1846 to 1857 he was employed by one of the large manufacturing companies in the city of Lawrence, as their agent. In 1857 he removed with his family to Minneapolis, Minn., where he resided until he died. During the war he served as quartermaster of Gen. Sibley's expedition against the Sioux Indians. After the close of the war he was employed by the U. S. Government in building and repairing public buildings at Key West, Fla., Wheeling, West Va., and other places.

Cone. He was educated in the common schools, was clerk in a store at Rumford, and when twenty-one went to Boston and found employment. He went to Iowa in 1853, to the town of Decorah, and engaged in the insurance and real estate business. He removed to Chicago, Ill., after a few years and exchanged his real estate in Decorah for a lot of pianos. This transaction laid the foundation of his future career. He engaged in the manufacture of pianos, and has been very successful. He greatly enlarged the business and put it into a stock company, of which he was president. This has become one of the largest piano establishments in the country. 933 Chester Kimball<sup>7</sup> (Sterry<sup>6</sup>, Daniel<sup>5</sup>, Jacob<sup>4</sup>, John<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, Richard<sup>1</sup>) born in Montgomery Co., N. Y., Dec. 11, 1807; died Ansonia, Pa., Sept. 24, 1845; married Nov. 29, 1835, Ann Marie Ter Bush, born Albany Co., N. Y., Aug. 25, 1808, died Feb. 29, 1876, daughter of Jonas and Polly N. (Tenchley) Ter Bush. Her grandfather, Peter Ter Boss, came from Holland before the Revolution, and served in the army. For this service he was granted six hundred acres of land in Dutchess Co., N. Y. Chester served a number of years in the regular army of the United States, Co. G, Fifth U. S. Infantry, enlisting at first for five years, June 15, 1829, at Rochester, and then re-enlisting for five years more, March 3, 1836. He served all through the Black Hawk War, and was at Green Bay when Black Hawk was captured. He saw Black Hawk in battle several times, and on one occasion he was in a detachment which Black Hawk supposed was militia, but when he found they were regulars he retreated. The soldiers in the Black Hawk War suffered great hardships and privations, numbers dying of fever and exposure. It was reported at one time that Chester was dead, and his wife not hearing from him for a long time married one Amos Orton, by whom she had Jane Orton, born July 14, 1844, and Nathan Orton, born July 24, 1846. He had been severely wounded, but finally recovered sufficiently to start for home, where he arrived to find his wife married to another. The shock was a severe one to him, and he immediately left to visit his relatives in Pennsylvania. His health being much broken by his wound and the hardships he had undergone, he never recovered, and a few months later died. He lived in New York state most of his life, except the time he spent in the army. He was a livery stable keeper.

Andrews writes in regard to this family: "Richard was a wild and wayward youth. He eloped with his future wife and was not heard from for years until she returned for a visit to her native town about 1853. In 1865 Mr. Andrews's father visited them at their home in Lake Co., Indiana, where they were engaged in farming. He and his son had just returned from service in an Indiana regiment in the Union army. One or two sons had died in childhood; also a married daughter, who left two little girls, who were residing with their grandparents. Three children were then living. Esther, his wife, has since died."

Wales, commission merchant doing business in Boston; married 2d, May 12, 1853, Susan Tillinghast Morton, born April 16, 1826, and still living. She was the daughter of Governor Marcus Morton of Massachusetts, and Charlotte (Hodges) Morton, granddaughter of Nathaniel Morton, born June 1, 1753, who, with his father, Nathaniel Morton, served from Freetown, Mass., in the Army of the Revolution. Moses Day Kimball took his name from Moses Day of Bradford, Mass., his great grandfather, who was the son of Moses Day and Abigail Kimball<sup>3</sup>, daughter of Benjamin Kimball<sup>2</sup>. He was an excellent example of the alert, energetic descendant of the early New Englanders. Like many of his generation he left the country for the city, there to display the same energy in building up commerce, that his ancestors had displayed in clearing the forests for their farms. He had all the courage of a successful worker, and was a man of unimpeachable honor and integrity. In business he was decided and energetic. He was personally unselfish, and his private life was admirable. He was humane, simple, generous, fond of nature and little children. For his family no sacrifice was too great for him to make. His too great business activity eventually broke him down and shortened his life, but the strength of his character left a lasting memory with those who remain. He commenced his business life with his brother-in-law, Abel Page, of Haverhill, Mass. In 1835 he came to Boston and was in business with the firm of Webster & Chase, dry goods merchants on Kilby street. Some years later he became a partner in the firm of Faulkner, Kimball & Co., commission merchants on Franklin street, Boston, Mass. He was for many years president of the Atlas Bank of Boston, and was a staunch member of the old Brattle-street Unitarian church.

But in great mercy my Lord has taken it away. So I now, though a marvel to myself, and to many for my activity and comfort, look with delightful hope to release from this mortal frame, to enjoy a pure immortal body like our Lord's after his rising from the dead. If restored to the image of God we shall be fitted to drink of the river of His pleasures. May we be thus restored and thus drink." 1045 George Kimball<sup>7</sup> (Benjamin<sup>6</sup>, George<sup>5</sup>, Thomas<sup>4</sup>, Thomas<sup>3</sup>, Thomas<sup>2</sup>, Richard<sup>1</sup>) born in Harvard, Mass., May 18, 1782; died in the Bermuda Islands in 1856; married in the Bermudas, a wealthy lady. William A. Wallace of Canaan, N. H., gives the following account of him: "He was graduated at Dartmouth College in the class of 1809. Read law, was admitted to the bar, and settled in practice at Union, Me., in 1813. Was afterwards for several years a successful teacher at Concord, N. H., Richmond, Va., and in Bermuda. Returning home he practised law in Concord, N. H., and edited the Concord Register. In 1827 he came to Canaan to practise law. I began my Latin course with him. He was a most excellent teacher, but a slip-shod lawyer, who never had his cases ready until after trial, when he would wonder why he had not been ready on time. Liberal, large hearted, sympathetic, he was early an active, earnest abolitionist. He left Canaan in 1836 and wandered West, and was standing by Lovejoy when he was murdered in Alton, Ill., in 1837. Then he took his wife back to Bermuda, where he died in 1858. He was a scholarly, intelligent old man, and I always liked him, for he acted as if he knew that he had once been a boy." He taught the select school in Amherst, N. H., in 1807, and belonged to the Franklin literary society at that place.

In early life she left home and went to reside with her relative, Col. James Kimball, in Bradford, Mass. She received her education at Bradford academy, then under charge of Miss Hazeltine. She afterwards lived with her uncle, John Burley of Beverly, Mass. She was for some years a teacher in a select school at Andover, Mass., living in the family of Dr. Elias Cornelius. Afterwards she taught at Montpelier, Vt. At the latter place she met and married May 14, 1833, Dr. Seth Field. Dr. Field was born in Leverett, Mass., March 20, 1797. He died of congestion of the brain, Aug 5, 1855. She resided (in 1896) in Gowanda, N. Y. They had no children.

<sup>2</sup> The Morison family is an ancient one. Its history is traced back for centuries. Its earliest known home was in the Island of Lewis, one of the Hebrides, on the northwest coast of Scotland. The Morisons were the Hereditary Judges of that island. An ancient writer named Morison asserts that all the Morisons of Scotland and elsewhere are descended from the family on that island.

ison, a sturdy Scotelman, born in Scotland in 1628, according to tradition, emigrated to Ireland, was in the siege of Londonderry, 1688-'89, and died in Londonderry, N. H., at the reputed age of 108 years. Jeremiah Morrison succeeded his parents on the homestead in Windham, where he spent his life. In his personal bearing he was courteous and genial. His judgment was excellent. Matters that he was called to decide he weighed with nice discrimination in the sensitively poised balance of his mind. He seldom erred in judgment or in his analysis of the character and motives of men. He was calm and collected, arrived at his conclusions slowly and with deliberation. Combining these qualities with a strict conscientiousness, it seldom became necessary for him to change his opinions, as they were seldom wrong. Having formed his opinions, he clung to them with great tenacity. He was among the earliest to espouse the anti-slavery cause, and at a time when it was unpopular. For its success he worked and voted to the end of his life. He lived to behold the glimmering rays of the morning of that glorious day which ushered in freedom for an enslaved race. For many years he was a member of the Presbyterian church. He was an earnest worker in the Sunday school, of which he was superintendent for many years. He also took great interest in the church and in the religious society. He was active in town affairs, occupying at different times most of the prominent positions in the town government. He was a member of the constitutional convention in 1850, and represented his town in the legislatures of 1825 and 1826, 1841 and 1852. He held a commission as justice of the peace for a long period, and did considerable business of a public nature.

CHILDREN, BORN IN WINDHAM, N. H.

- i. Christopher Merrill Morrison<sup>s</sup>, b. Dec. 2, 1836; d. of consumption Dec. 22, 1857. His sister, M. Lizzie (Morrison) Park, thus writes concerning him: "From a child he was of a thoughtful mind, mature in judgment, conscientious in character, and as years passed these qualities were still more strongly defined. His purpose and desire were to obtain a liberal education, and for this object he entered the academy at Atkinson, N. H., preparatory to a college course. While there his attention was strongly directed towards religious subjects, and the result was that he entered with his whole heart and soul upon a new life, which brought with it strength to bear and suffer during a long and painful illness, and fitted him for that rest which remaineth for the people of God. For nearly two years before his death he was a member of the Presbyterian church in Windham, N. H. He had nearly finished his preparatory course when disease laid its wasting hand upon him. While giving up the studies in which he delighted, and all the plans of his earthly future which were dear to him, he cheerfully obeyed the summons 'Come up higher.'"

- ii. Margaret Elizabeth Morrison<sup>8</sup>, b. Windham, N. H., Dec. 25, 1838; m. Jan. 29, 1868, Horace Park, b. Feb. 29, 1837, son of Capt. Andrew and Margaret (Morrison) Park of Belfast, Me. He resides on the homestead in Belfast, and has been connected with the city government. She was educated at the seminary for young ladies in Bradford, Mass. A few months before the time at which she expected to be graduated, an event to which she had looked forward with bright anticipations as the crown of her years of faithful study, she was called home by the illness of her brother. Her life plan was given up, and for several years she ministered to those who were dearest to her. During the long illness of her two brothers, her father, and her mother, she cared for them with the most tender affection. At their deaths much of love and happiness departed from her childhood's home, and she was soon after married. She was a member of the Presbyterian church in Windham, N. H. Her membership has been transferred to the Congregational church in Belfast, Me., where she has resided since her marriage. Children: 1. Mabel Agnes Park<sup>9</sup>, b. July 18, 1875. Resides in Belfast, Me. 2. Edward Horace Park<sup>9</sup>, b. Aug. 9, 1877. Resides in Belfast, Me.
- iii. Edward Payson Morrison<sup>8</sup>, b. Jan. 28, 1840; d. Aug. 5, 1858. Mrs. Park, his sister, writes as follows: "Very early in life he showed that he possessed an active mind, quick to acquire and strong to retain, which developed into a decided and eager taste for literary pursuits. At the age of thirteen he became a member of the academy at Atkinson, N. H., where he finished his preparatory course, intending at once to enter college. While teaching in the winter of 1857-'58 the first symptoms of consumption were manifested. From these he never recovered. Like his brother, he early became a member of the Presbyterian church, and strengthened and sustained by a like precious faith, he gave up the bright hopes of his youth and the brilliant promise of his future, and cheerfully laid down his life while it was yet morning. He died at Peacham, Vt., where he had gone in the hope of regaining his health, at the early age of eighteen years, six months, and eighteen days.

“Death cannot come
To him untimely, who is fit to die;
The less of this cold world, the more of Heaven,
The briefer life, the earlier immortality.”

- iv. Donald Roderick Morrison<sup>8</sup>, b. Aug. 21, 1841; d. Sept. 19, 1841.
- v. Leonard Allison Morrison<sup>8</sup>, b. Feb. 21, 1843. Was educated in the common schools of Windham, at the academy in Gowanda, N. Y., and at the seminary at Sanbornton Bridge, now Tilton, N. H. He occupies and owns the homestead in Windham, N.H. He takes a strong interest in the public affairs in the town. He served as a selectman in 1871-'72, and in those years aided in the establishment of the Nesmith Free Public Library, which contains three thousand volumes, and of which he became a trustee. He presided as moderator in the annual town meetings for fifteen years. He has been a justice of the peace since 1869, was an enumerator of the 10th U. S. census in 1880. One of the county auditors 1886-'87. He is a republican in politics and has taken an active part in the party. He was a member of the New Hampshire republican state committee in 1881-'82. In 1884 he was elected a member of the New Hampshire house of representatives for two years, serving from June, 1885, to June, 1887. Was chairman of the committee on education, and successfully piloted to the statute book the bill establishing the town system of schools. In 1886 he was elected state senator from the Londonderry district to serve from June, 1887, to June, 1889. In the senate he was made chairman of the committee on education, and served on the committee on engrossed bills, on agriculture, and on state prison and industrial school. Since 1861 he has been a contributor to the public press, newspapers, and magazines. Since 1878 his time has been largely given to literary work, politics, and foreign travel. In 1878 to 1880 he prepared "The History of the Morison or Morrison Family," an octavo

volume with twenty pages of illustrations, published in 1880 by A. Williams & Co. of Boston, Mass. An edition of 1,100 copies was printed. This was favorably received by the family and the press, and copies found their way to Scotland, England, Ireland, Australia, and to all parts of the United States and Canada, and the edition was quickly exhausted. In 1880 he commenced the "History of Windham in New Hampshire," upon which he spent three years of unceasing toil. It was published by Cupples, Upham & Co., Boston, Mass. It is an octavo volume of 872 pages, with 60 pages of illustrations. Less than one thousand copies were printed and the edition was exhausted in a short time. Copies are now at a high premium. In 1882 he wrote a condensed history of Windham, which appeared in the history of Rockingham and Strafford counties, N. H. In 1884 he spent several months in Europe, engaged in historical research and in travel. Several months were spent in the Scotch settlements in Ireland, in Scotland, and in England, visiting many towns, consulting different libraries, and making the acquaintance of many distinguished people. In 1887 he published, as the result of his travel and investigation, "Rambles in Europe; in Ireland, Scotland, England, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland, and France; With Historical Facts Relating to Scotch-American Families, Gathered in Scotland and the North of Ireland." This was an octavo volume of 351 pages with illustrations. In 1889 he again visited Europe for historical purposes, travelling extensively in Ireland, Wales, Scotland, England, Switzerland, France, and Italy, and in 1891 his "Among the Scotch-Irish, and Through Seven Countries," was published. He wrote a "Supplement to the History of Windham in New Hampshire" (1892); prepared "The History and Proceedings of the Celebration of the One Hundred and Fiftieth Anniversary of the Incorporation of Windham in New Hampshire, Held June 9th, 1892." He is the author of "The Lineage and Biographies of the Norris Family," (1892); "History of the Alison or Allison Family in Europe and America," (1893); "History of the Sinclair Family in Europe and America," a work of 518 pages with illustrations, published in 1896; he is joint author with Prof. S. P. Sharples of Cambridge, Mass., of "The History of the Kimball Family in Europe and America." Mr. Morrison's literary and historical work has completely absorbed his mind, and he has engaged in it with great enthusiasm and delight. In recognition of his services to history and genealogy, Dartmouth College in 1884 conferred on him the honorary degree of master of arts. He was elected a life member of the New Hampshire Historical Society in 1893, and was elected vice-president for New Hampshire of "The Scotch-Irish Society of America" in 1894, and re-elected in 1895. He is unmarried. Resides Canobie Lake, Windham, N. H.

simplicity of a child." In 1820 he and Brigham Young were intimate friends, and this intimacy was kept up as long as he lived. Both became members of the "Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints." In 1831 and in 1837 Heber C. Kimball went to England to introduce the doctrines of that church. He was accompanied by several other elders and remained in England about nine months, laboring in different parts with astonishing success. Whole villages were converted by his preaching and that of his companions, and churches were built up aggregating a membership of thousands. In 1840 he again went to England as a missionary, remaining about a year and again met with great success. In 1847 when Brigham Young became president of the church he chose Heber C. Kimball as his "first counselor" and Willard Richards as his second, these three comprising the presiding "quorum" of that remarkable community, which settled in the great American Desert a thousand miles from civilization, and there created a prosperous commonwealth lately admitted into the Union as the State of Utah. Second only to Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball stands among the founders of civilization in the Rocky Mountains, as a leader of the people who settled there. Pursuant to the prophetic foresight which was one of his strongest characteristics, he stored up grain when it was plentiful and when famine prevailed he relieved hundreds of families who were threatened with starvation. His life was filled with remarkable experiences and incidents, and when he died he left among his people a name that has ever since been held in love and reverence. (B. F. Cummings.)

He was among the earliest to embrace the teachings of Joseph Smith, and he was a devout and sincere follower of the doctrines laid down by the Prophet of the Mormons. His beliefs and views were fully shared by the wife of his youth. The biography of Heber Kimball has been written by his grandson, Orson P. Whitney, in an exceedingly interesting manner. It may be obtained by addressing his son, Solomon F. Kimball, Salt Lake City, Utah. We are indebted to Solomon F. Kimball for the portrait of his father which we have inserted.

He was one of the many sons of Major Daniel Dyer, who fought under General Stark at the Battle of Bennington, and who had a reputation in Vermont as a sheep raiser. His mother was Susan (Olin) Dyer, a woman noted for her remarkable energy and who secured the release from Portland jail of the prisoners who it was alleged had violated the alien and sedition laws. Matthew Lyon and others being unable to secure the enormous sum required for bail, Mrs. Dyer rode on horseback to the principal villages in the state, borrowed the family silver and gold of political friends, transported it unattended over a thousand miles, deposited it to the value of fifteen thousand dollars with the sheriff at Rutland, and obtained their release. From this stock came George Randolph Dyer, who is known throughout the state of Illinois as an active, hardy pioneer, who did much to build up the great Northwest. A distinguished abolitionist, a personal friend of Abraham Lincoln and Owen Lovejoy, he was one of the first to take up arms in defence of his country in the War of the Rebellion. Mrs. Dyer was a lady of fine natural endowments and graceful manners, whose excellent sense, fine culture, and domestic accomplishments eminently fitted her for a helpmate for a young, energetic, and ambitious man.

1308 John Shackford Kimball<sup>7</sup> (David<sup>6</sup>, Michael<sup>5</sup>, Edmund<sup>4</sup>, Samuel<sup>3</sup>, Benjamin<sup>2</sup>, Richard<sup>1</sup>) born in Pembroke, N. H., April 28, 1812; died Boston, Mass., April 19, 1888; married Oct. 15, 1843, Mary Elbridge Stevens, born Jan. 16, 1818. His early education was obtained at New Hampton Academy. While a student there he became one of the founders of the "Social Fraternity Library." After leaving the academy he was employed for some time in a bakery at Concord, N. H. He left this place to enter the printing office of Hill and Sherburn at Concord, where he learned book and job work. He was afterwards in the office of Hill and Barton. He became noted as a card printer, and introduced enamelled work. He afterwards spent some time in the Franklin Book Store at Concord, leaving there to enter the postoffice at Portland, Me., where he spent three years. While in Portland he commenced the study of law with Mr. Haynes, who was district attorney for Cumberland Co. He continued his studies in the Harvard Law School at Cambridge, Mass., and finished his preparatory course in the office of Robert Rantoul of Boston, who was celebrated as a lawyer. After his admission to the bar he was for six years in partnership with Mr. Rantoul. On account of the failure of his health he was compelled to abandon the practice of the law. About the year 1838 he became a partner in the firm of Kimball and Chase of Burlington, Iowa, succeeding to the interest of his brother, Joseph L. Kimball. About 1840 Mr. Chase died and Samuel B. Wright, Mr. Kimball's brother-in-law, who had married Mary Lewis Kimball, entered the firm, the firm name being changed to J. S. Kimball & Co. This firm became noted as wholesale dealers in dry goods and groceries, both in the East and West, doing the largest business of any concern of its class in its section of the country. Mr. Kimball became known as one of the most skillful buyers in the trade. In 1865 he retired from active business, disposing of his interest to William Bell of Salt Lake City, Utah. The business was continued under the firm name of Wright, Bell, Chamberlin & Co. He resided in Boston, Mass., till about 1854. He then purchased an estate in Hopkinton, N. H., where he became a legal resident. He represented Hopkinton in the state legislature in 1866 and 1867. Gov. Walter Harri- man appointed him colonel on his staff, which position he accepted and filled during the governor's term of office.
